Outlook Good for Historic Lift-Off Today

Chances for Space Rendezvous 50-50

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP)—Gemini 7 astronauts Frank Borman and James A. Lovell Jr. relaxed Friday on the eve of one of man's greatest space adventures—a two-week endurance flight during which two manned vehicles may fly within inches while orbiting at 17,500 miles an hour.

Success of the marathon mission and the planned rendezvous with Gemini 6, which will be launched later, would topple all man-in-space records and considerably enhance U.S. confidence that it can land astronauts on the moon in this decade.

Most space agency officials feel there is slightly better than a 50-50 chance that the Gemini 7 and 6 rendezvous can be accomplished in mid-December.

The smoothest pre-launch preparations in the history of the U.S. man-in-space program coasted without a hitch toward today's scheduled 11:30 a.m. PST launching of Gemini 7.

The weather outlook, which had caused concern Thursday, brightened.

The forecast was for cloudy but satisfactory launching conditions at Cape Kennedy this afternoon.

All systems in the four-ton spacecraft and the Titan II rocket received thorough checks Friday and were pronounced in excellent shape. Fuel was loaded in the power-producing fuel cells.

If Britain Fails to Fill Gap

Zambia's Chief Sees Red-Led Race War

LUSAKA (AP)—Zambia's President Kenneth Kaunda suggested Friday that he might call for Soviet troops if Britain refuses to invade neighboring white-ruled Rhodesia. The British flew war planes into Zambia during the day for defence but Kaunda said that is not enough.

"If the United Kingdom refused to send ground troops," he said, "we could ask the United States."

He contended, however, that the U.S. is likely to follow Britain's lead, and added: "What is there left for us to do but to go to the Soviet government?" He said this is "just a line of thought."

If the Soviet Union is drawn into the campaign, he added, "this would not only be a racial war, but an ideological one."

The president talked at a press conference as RAF fighter and transport planes swarmed into the country to defend the Kariba Dam, on the Zambezi River border between Zambia and Rhodesia, which supplies power to the Zambian copper complex.

The British flew war planes into Zambia during the day for defence but Kaunda said that is not enough.

The delegates to the Organization of African Unity also voted to bar planes to Rhodesia from flying over their territory, cut off all communications with the breakaway British colony and to block all Rhodesian bank accounts. It declared all Rhodesian travel documents void.

The British have offered to send troops to protect the installation, but negotiations are bogged down over Zambia and possibly other countries.

This issue is considered especially vital since there is the possibility that troops from African countries might take part in any future operations here.

U.K. Seizes Reserve Bank

LONDON (UPI)—Britain, Friday, took over the Reserve Bank of Rhodesia and with it control of an estimated $56,000,000 in a dramatic new bid to crush the Rhodesian rebellion.

The action was regarded in financial quarters here as the toughest move yet made in the plan to bring the rebel government of Prime Minister Ian Smith to its knees.

It gives Britain immediate access to about $28,000,000 of Rhodesia's money and eventual control—when the bank's newly-appointed directors find out where it is—of the remaining amount.

Suicide In Berlin

Deputy Premier Erich Apel of East Germany committed suicide Friday "after a sudden nervous collapse," the official East German news agency said. Aged 48, he had been unwell for some time.

Thompson Fortifies Liberals

OTTAWA (UPI)—Social Credit leader Robert Thompson Friday virtually guaranteed the minority Liberal government the votes it will need to weather any non-confidence motions in the new parliamentary session beginning Jan. 18.

"We won't allow the government to be blackmailed, and we won't allow Conservative leader John Diefenbaker to throw the country into another election," Thompson said in an interview.

The Social Credit leader said his party's five votes "can be a stabilizing force" in parliament. The Liberals are only two seats short of a majority.

In a free-wheeling interview, the MP from Red Deer, Alta., blasted Prime Minister Lester Pearson for not reorganizing his cabinet immediately after the election.

Rescuer Trapped

Gary Liebenberg, 21, cries out in agony as drainage ditch caves in on him while he attempted to dig out fellow-worker Jack Ward, 28, buried several feet in foreground. Men were working on narrow-gauge railroad for tourists in California.—(AP)

Russia Tries Again New Shot at Moon

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet Union launched Friday its fourth attempt this year to land an instrument package softly on the moon and take a major stride ahead of the United States in the race to put a man there.

If all goes well, the first soft lunar landing in history should take place around midnight Moscow time (1 p.m. PST) Monday night, when American astronauts are scheduled to be orbiting the earth in the Gemini 7 capsule.

The unmanned Soviet space station Luna VIII, loaded with scientific equipment, weighed slightly more than earlier Soviet moon shots this year, 3,421.5 pounds.

The difference in weight could be due to refinements in the soft-landing system following three unsuccessful tests earlier this year. Luna V and Luna VI crashed on the moon by 100,000 miles.

An official announcement said the main purpose of Luna VIII is "further refinement of the elements of a soft lunar landing and scientific studies."

The announcement said all systems were functioning normally when the Lunik was last reported 28,378 miles from earth over Sinkiang province in western China.

Saigon: 11 Dead, 163 Hurt

MOBILE 'BOMB' ROCKS BILLET

SAIGON (AP)—Viet Cong terrorists, breaking a pre-Christmas truce, attacked and blew up a U.S. enlisted men's billet with machine guns, grenades and an explosive-laden market truck before dawn today in downtown Saigon.

Estimates of Vietnamese casualties ranged up to 100, including eight dead.

A U.S. military spokesman said two Americans were killed and 67 wounded. A New Zealand artilleryman was killed and four of his mates wounded.

A series of bomb scares swept over the city after the big blast at the Metropole Hotel billet.

A Claymore mine was planted in the street with a time-fuse set to go off when a crowd gathered. It failed to go off.

A bomb believed to have been a hand grenade exploded near the top floor of a three-story officers' dormitory about two blocks from the Metropole. No one was injured there.

The MP was wounded as he emptied his revolver and shot at the attackers.

Windows in the navy hospital were broken by the explosion and five patients were slightly injured by flying glass. The navy hospital adjoins the billet.

Also damaged was the navy dispensary in the billet building, and one source said it might be five or six weeks before it and its delicate X-ray and other equipment would be fully operating again.

Nearly all windows in the billet and vicinity were shattered. Most of the U.S. and New Zealand casualties were hit by flying glass.

A spokesman said, "fortunately, all of the boys were in their beds at the time, and not moving around. That meant they got a minimum of hits."

Touring U.S. Senate Majority Leader, Mike Mansfield, Democrat of Montana, and U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge visited the scene soon after dawn.

Lodge said later: "The bombing of the dispensary building and enlisted men's quarters was a diabolic act. It was also murder. In addition, it was sheer wanton terrorism, as was the killing and wounding of Vietnamese men, women and children who lived and worked nearby."

The bombing of the dispensary building and enlisted men's quarters was a diabolic act. It was also murder. In addition, it was sheer wanton terrorism, as was the killing and wounding of Vietnamese men, women and children who lived and worked nearby.

Five or six men leaped from the building and were killed.

'Dangerous Momentum' In Viet War

UNITED NATIONS (UPI)—Secretary-General U Thant warned the United Nations Friday the war in Viet Nam appeared to be gathering "dangerous momentum."

Thant told the 11-nation General Assembly after it had approved overwhelmingly a couple of resolutions on disarmament nothing would improve the prospects for disarmament more than an end to the Vietnamese war.

Russians Pay China In U.S. Coin

UNITED NATIONS (UPI)—China is forcing the Soviet Union to pay in American dollars and gold for transit duties and customs on Russian supplies sent to North Viet Nam, according to diplomatic sources.

The non-western diplomats said the Soviet Union has submitted to the charges even on medical supplies sent across China to Ho Chi Minh's regime in Hanoi.

With little demurring, the diplomats said, the Soviet Union has paid up.

Colonist 500 Fund

Brownie Pack Strives For Needy Families

Children are learning their community is not a homogeneous blend of easy living by helping with The Colonist 500 Fund.

Every year, groups of youngsters find out about the fund, ask questions and do something about it.

The fund sends a Christmas gift of money to the 500 neediest families in Greater Victoria. This is the ninth year of its operation. Last year the 500 received cheques for $25 each.

The latest groups of children to help this year were the 11th Victoria Brownie Pack of Gordon Head and the Grade

5, division 8, class of Richmond Elementary School.

The Brownies held a sale of candy they made themselves, toys and comics they donated.

The Grade fivers gathered more than 1,000 bottles and sold them for a substantial $30.75.

Their reward, and that of hundreds of other generous Victorians, will be letters like these:

A pensioner: "I know that no one will go hungry at Christmas when there are so many wonderful and thoughtful people in this fair city."

That's how much $25 means to some of our neighbors at Christmas. Maybe we'll be able to give them more this year.

You can help by bringing or sending your contribution to The Daily Colonist 500 Fund, 2631 Douglas.

Esther and Rene Castellani

Patient's Death: Murder

Coroner's Jury Rules in Arsenic Case

VANCOUVER (CF)—A coroner's jury Friday said the July 11 death of Mrs. Esther Castellani was due to arsenic poisoning and classified it as homicide by person or persons unknown.

Mrs. Castellani died after being ill for seven weeks in hospital and the jury said: "We think the numerous doctors would have benefited by group consultation in order to arrive at a more definite diagnosis at an earlier date."

The jury recommended that pesticides and herbicides containing poisons such as arsenic be sold only on the signature of the buyer in a register kept by the vendor.

Coroner Glen McDonald, at the close of a 2½-day inquest which heard evidence given and denied that Mrs. Castellani's husband was planning to marry another woman, told the jury of three men and three women that they had to decide whether it was a case of suicide, accidental death or homicide. But if they found the latter he suggested that they could not find any particular person responsible.

The coroner repeated previous warnings to the jury that hearsay evidence from various witnesses must be considered as such and not necessarily as the truth.

were found, about 100 milligrams more than could prove fatal to a human being. They said the ingestion of the arsenic had occurred over a period of several months.

Earlier, the jury heard Mrs. Adelaide (Lolly) Miller deny that she had ever had a romantic association with Rene Castellani, husband of the dead woman and an employee of radio station CKNW where Mrs. Miller also worked.

Mrs. Miller, a widow with a boy of six, denied testimony by the builder of a house that she planned to buy that she and Castellani had planned to be married. She said the builder's testimony was due to a misunderstanding.

She admitted that she and her son had gone on a California holiday with Castellani and his daughter five days after Mrs. Castellani's death. She said there was no talk of marriage before Mrs. Castellani died.

Police testified to finding a partly used can of Ortho Triox, a weed killer containing arsenic, in Castellani's home. Another witness, Sheila Luond, Mrs. Castellani's sister-in-law, testified that Castellani had brought food to his wife while she was in hospital and Mrs. Castellani had complained of the taste. She said Castellani had once insisted that she dispose of the remains of a meal he had been feeding his wife in hospital.

Lurking Parasites Threat To Transfusion Recipient

By JOSEPH MOLNER, MD
Dear Dr. Molner: I have heard that a person who has had malaria should not donate blood. But why not, if it doesn't show up in a blood test?—MRS. E.H. Malaria is essentially a disease involving parasitic germs which get into the blood stream. Growth of these parasites occurs in cycles. When the growth becomes excessive, you have the sudden chills and fever of malaria.

Most types of malaria can be treated very effectively, but there remains the chance that some of the parasites may be lurking rather dormant in the blood stream.

Should they, by way of transfusion, be transferred to some other person who has not had malaria, they can multiply and cause a full-blown case of the disease.

It is unpleasant to think of passing malaria on to someone else by such an accident. But it is even more unpleasant to think of passing the disease on to someone who already is very ill or is suffering from serious wounds.

Dear Dr. Molner: My daughter, going on 18, constantly rubs her face with cotton soaked in alcohol after picking a pimple. I am sure that by the time she is 25 she will be wrinkled and have very dry skin.

I tell her she shouldn't pick the pimples but she says the pimple must come out, otherwise it will eat holes in her face. If she would dab the pimples once or twice with alcohol and forget it, that wouldn't be too bad, but she rubs her face from time to time for an hour.—MRS. E.H.

Unpicked pimples won't "eat holes in her face," and I'm against pimple picking. If people must do it, then dabbing alcohol on the area before and after is a precaution against infection.

Yes, considerable use of alcohol is drying to the skin, although I doubt that it will encourage premature wrinkling. If your daughter really wants to help her complexion, she'll accomplish more by washing rather frequently with soap and water, and rinsing her face generously afterward.

Dear Dr. Molner: After her first week in college my daughter has come down with mononucleosis. What are the chances of a relapse?—E.H. Very modest medical care plus nourishing diet and adequate rest until she is back to normal are sufficient insurance against a relapse.

Personal note of MRS. J.R.: Your "shakes" that vanish after you eat may well be nerves, as you suggest in your letter, but I think it would be well worth while to investigate as to whether hypoglycemia (low blood sugar) might be involved, too. A combination of causes, such as hypoglycemia and nervousness, should also be considered.

Astronauts Relax on Eve of Flight

The Titan II was to be fuelled Friday.

U.S. Air Force Lt. Col. Borman and navy Cmdr. Lovell attended a two-hour mission review and then retired to their "ready room" quarters at the Cape to rest and study the complex flight plan that calls for them to circle the globe 206 times in 229 hours 30 minutes—6½ hours shy of 14 days.

The Gemini 6 astronauts, navy Capt. Walter M. Schirra Jr. and air force Maj. Thomas P. Stafford, meanwhile, practised rendezvous manoeuvres in a spacecraft simulator.

Lovell and Borman were reported anxious to get started.

Borman had dinner Thursday night with his wife, Susan, and two teen-age sons, who flew here from their Houston, Tex., home for the launching.

Mrs. Lovell is expecting a baby—which could arrive while her husband is circling the globe—and remained in Houston.

The flight will be the most extensive test yet of man's ability to withstand physically and mentally long exposure to the space environment. Medical experiments have been given No. 1 priority.

Borman and Lovell will wear new lightweight space suits which they hope to remove for at least parts of the flight for comfort. Lovell will try removing his suit sometime during the first day. At least one will be suited at all times during the flight.

Schirra and Stafford are to take off from the same launch pad Dec. 13—nine days after Gemini 7 is airborne—to begin the historic pursuit.

"We've got a good chance of doing it," said Flight Director Chris Kraft. "There are three factors involved: How well the spacecraft 7 operates, how well we do with the checkout of Gemini 6 spacecraft and launch vehicle, and the weather."

Gemini 6 is to chase Gemini 7 across the skies on an orbit-shifting 103,000-mile course, hopefully catching it within six hours after Schirra and Stafford blast away from Cape Kennedy. Initial rendezvous is planned 385 miles above the Pacific Ocean. The two spaceships initially will approach each other nose to nose. Although both will be going about 17,500 miles an hour, the relative difference in their velocity will be less than half a foot a second.

"They'll attempt to manoeuvre to within a few inches, but we'll be satisfied with a few feet," said Kraft. "My personal feeling is that it would not be dangerous to touch. It will be up to the pilots. But for safety sake and because there is no technological reason, they probably won't touch."

The two space chariots then will fly side by side, one behind the other and practice backing away and coming close together again for a period of about six hours.

If everything goes as planned, Schirra and Stafford will return to earth after one day.

Otherwise, they'll stay up for two days.

Ground War at Low Ebb

SAIGON (UPI) — A U.S. Marine helicopter crashed in flames and exploded while on a troop-carrying mission near Da Nang Friday and four American Marines and nine Vietnamese soldiers were feared killed.

A U.S. Navy pilot was reported killed Thursday when Communist anti-aircraft gunners shot down his Skyraider during one of two carrier-based strikes against North Viet Nam in which two bridges were destroyed.

Huge B52 bombers from Guam carried out three strikes against Viet Cong targets in South Viet Nam Thursday, including the war-torn Chu Pong mountain area in the central highlands, scene of some of the heaviest fighting of the war.

Fishing Help Outlined

OTTAWA (CP) — Details of federal government aid to fishermen who had a serious catch failure in the last season were announced Friday by Fisheries Minister Robichaud.

To be eligible for the assistance, promised Sept. 27 by Prime Minister Pearson, a fisherman must have at least five weeks with fishing stamps in his unemployment insurance book that were earned in 1965.

EXCLUDED
Excluded will be fishermen with no dependants who are entitled to more than $150 in unemployment insurance in the 1965-66 benefit period, and fishermen with dependants and an insurance entitlement exceeding $200.

The amount of special assistance paid by the fisheries department will depend on the fishermen's initial entitlement to seasonal benefit this winter.

If he has dependants, he will receive the difference between $200 and his earned unemployment insurance entitlement.

If he has no dependants, he will receive the difference between $150 and his earned insurance entitlement.

MAKE APPLICATION
Fishermen who have not applied for unemployment insurance this winter because they do not have the minimum contributions required, but who do have a minimum of five weeks with fishing stamps earned in 1965, were advised by the minister to make such application to their local unemployment insurance commission office in the usual way.

Fishermen will not be eligible for the special assistance unless they have applied for unemployment insurance before March 26, 1966.

Finning's Jack Hubble can't see what he's doing until he turns off the lights.

He's looking for signs of metal fatigue in a critical engine part. Such fatigue may take the form of a hairline crack, invisible to the naked eye.

So Jack will turn off the lights and find it.

The machine he is using is a kind of magnetic X-ray. It takes a part that has first been coated with fluorescent iron particles and runs an electric current through it. This causes a tiny arc to jump the hairline fault attracting a build-up of iron particles so that they can be seen under black light.

Still, great though the machine is, it takes an expert like Jack Hubble to operate it. It is his skill and judgment that must separate what looks like trouble from what is trouble. There's no room for error!

Making sure every step of the way is a feature of Finning's repair and rebuild services. It's a case where only the best men working with the best equipment will do. And one more reason why people in B.C.'s primary industries buy Caterpillar equipment year after year. From Finning, the service company.

Diplomatic Victory

ONLY TWENTY-FOUR hours earlier Reuter despatches from Moscow indicated that Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko had rebuffed Britain's Foreign Secretary Michael Stewart in his effort to bring the Viet Nam deadlock to the negotiating table.

Then, dramatically, Mr. Stewart was addressing the Russian people, urging that the Soviet Union and Great Britain jointly take the initiative in seeking a Viet Nam peace formula . . . and this over the Moscow television system, with simultaneous translation.

The hopeful and significant development is the more impressive for the fact that, whatever Mr. Gromyko's first reaction to Mr. Stewart's overtures, Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin is obviously impressed, if not won over to concurrence with the British point of view.

Originally, Mr. Stewart had proposed a conference sponsored by the Soviet and Britain as co-chairmen of the Geneva peace body which ended the French-Communist fighting in 1954. Mr. Gromyko insisted that a first condition of negotiation would be the United States' complete withdrawal from Viet Nam.

But at the higher level, Mr. Stewart's proposed guarantees to both North and South Viet Nam against aggression, one from the other or from any outside source, and for a free vote in a choice of governments won what appears to have been a sympathetic hearing from the Soviet premier.

Following the British minister's Moscow television address, William Bundy in Washington, speaking for the state department, conceded if free elections were held in South Viet Nam and the Communists won the United States "would have to accept the result." He had no fears of such a victory, he added.

At this time there is no indication either from Hanoi, the North Viet Nam capital, or Peking, where Communist policy in Southeast Asia unquestionably is determined, that these governments are receptive to the idea of negotiated peace or even to the necessary first step, a cease-fire. Heretofore an American withdrawal has been a stipulation before the Communists would consider sitting down to conference on a peace plan for Viet Nam.

But there can be no doubt that the British manoeuvres and the Russian reaction have created an atmosphere in which progress is possible.

The intimation that Russia may be willing to reconsider its opposition to an East-West treaty to ban the spread of nuclear weapons, although it is incidental to the conversations on a Viet Nam peace, is another encouraging development.

For both of these adjustments of attitude—the Russian willingness to consider peace moves and to discuss a nuclear arms treaty—Great Britain can take credit.

It does nothing to detract from the Soviet Union's dignity in an apparent change of heart, its show of confidence in Great Britain as a mediator, and a certain generosity in accepting a first formula contrary to its earlier policy.

Saatchi Milestone

AS WITH VICTORIA CITY and its rejuvenated and spacious quarters in Centennial Square, so with its closely adjoining neighbor of Saatchi. That municipality has also now entered into premises worthy of its increasing stature and steady growth, requiring as it does equally favorable headquarters from which its affairs may be directed with convenience and suitable modern facilities.

The opening this week by Lieutenant-Governor Pearkes of the new Saatchi municipal hall at Swan Lake, therefore, was of marked interest and importance to the municipality. Saatchi it is that probably now has the largest population of any of the components of Greater Victoria, and its numbers may be expected to far outstretch its contemporaries as the years go on. It is in Saatchi that there is room to spare for future large-scale development, and it offers increasing attraction as a residential area.

It was fitting that this milestone in Saatchi history should be reached, for three months hence it will celebrate its diamond anniversary as a municipality. The new administration centre comes into use in time to suit this special occasion.

It was appropriate to the Saatchi scene also that Reeve Hugh Curtis' re-election by acclamation should coincide with the opening of its new hall, proof of the administrative competence of this young municipal leader and of the confidence the people of his municipality place in him. He would have cause for pride and satisfaction as his municipal peers at the opening ceremonies offered their congratulations to Saatchi and their good wishes for its future progress and prosperity.

Le Slangage

WHILE THE NATIONAL Japanese-Canadian Citizens Association was telling the royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism in Toronto that any constitutional amendments should safeguard the cultures of all Canadians—not just the English and French-speaking sections of the society—and the Ukrainian Self-Reliance League of Canada was arguing that ethnic groups other than the French were entitled to demand the teaching of their mother tongues in public schools, members of L'Académie Française in Paris were twisting their beards in furious frustration because of the English terms so widely accepted into the language of France.

For example, they complained, French people were using such expressions as "le barman," "le shopping," "le weekend," "le rugbysman" and "le drug-store."

They speak of these terms as "franglais."

We can go along with the Japanese-Canadians and the Ukrainian league in their perfectly justifiable endeavor to have their cultural heritages protected under the constitution. So should the music and poetry, the language and the legends of other racial groups be preserved.

But it is hard to find sympathy for French Premier Georges Pompidou who so resents the acceptance of English words in the conversations of modern Frenchmen.

Surely it is permissible for one language to borrow from another for the sake of clarity and precision. Surely none in his right mind will object to such words as "rendezvous" or "camouflage" and any of a thousand others adopted into English from the French.

After all, modern languages of the West have their roots in the tongues of the Greeks and the Romans, and the whole story of rhetoric is one of adaptation.

If the Greeks had a better word for it, why not use it?

Ottawa Offbeat

Only Four of Ten Support Government

By RICHARD JACKSON, Columnist Ottawa Bureau

NOW that the high feeling of the election has subsided, it's interesting to look back at the effect of the minor parties on the outcome.

As is known, the Liberals took almost half of the seats in Parliament, but did so with little more than 40 per cent of the total vote. In fact, the Conservatives and NDP together took close to 55 per cent of the total vote, but together held only 118 seats in the House.

This is the strongest possible argument, of course, for redistribution to be carried out as swiftly as possible.

Surely the total votes of the parties and the number of seats they hold should come much closer together on a percentage basis.

This might have been the case, even without redistribution, if there had been only two parties running in the election, although voters in some ridings would still not have a great voice as those in others.

As it was, with New Democrats, Socialists and Creditistes in the running (to say nothing of the odd Communist and two representatives of the Rho Party), the vote did not provide true majority representation.

In only 51 seats did the winner take enough votes to see to it that all his opponents lost their deposits. (To hold their deposits, losers must gain more than half the number of votes taken by the winner.)

On the other hand, there were 11 seats in which no candidate lost his deposit, which means that more votes were cast against the winner than for him.

A prime example of this is Algoma West, in Ontario, where a recount is being held. Liberal George Nixon took 12,028 votes. Conservative Russell Ramsey got 11,914 and the NDP candidate, Erhart Ragier, got 8,564.

This means Mr. Nixon received only 35.59 per cent of the vote, yet he won the seat, unless the recount changes the outcome, in which case Mr. Ramsey would be in much the same position.

The percentage varies, but the same holds true in the other 16 ridings and, to a lesser extent, in more than 100 others.

For instance, the combined votes against Social Credit Leader Robert Thompson would have defeated him if they had all gone to one man. NDP Leader Douglas would still have won, although one of his opponents managed to keep his deposit.

Prime Minister Pearson, Opposition Leader Diefenbaker and Creditiste Leader Real Caouette won true pluralities in their home ridings.

Mr. Diefenbaker and Mr. Caouette both swamped three opponents, while Mr. Pearson turned back two.

All in all, however, the Canadian people showed their dislike of a multiplicity of parties by soundly defeating many of the candidates of the minor parties.

There were more than 1,000 candidates and 450 of them lost their deposits, amounting to the equivalent of $86,000.

But out of that total of lost deposits, Liberal and Conservative going down worst in Quebec, particularly where Creditistes won, and the Liberals on the Prairies.

This would appear to indicate that the minor parties find least favor with the voters, who still tend to give the greatest support to the two major parties.

When redistribution is put into effect in the next session of Parliament (hopefully), this attitude should become even more pronounced, spurred on, no doubt, by a general feeling that it is time the country once again had a majority government of some sort or another.

The voters may even have been seeking such a thing this time, because they gave the Liberals and Conservatives together 74 per cent of the votes and, with the lopsided distribution, more than 80 per cent of the seats in the House.

There is the chance, of course, that the voters may be spared close, while the Conservatives, Socialists and Creditistes all appear to be supported by the body of voters which once voted only Conservative.

Conditions could solve a lot of problems.

Wolf Winter's Bite

By ROLAND HUNTFORD, from Stockholm

TOP of the Swedish "pops" been blocked and crops destroyed.

November is normally a month of fog and rain. It is also harvest time for sugar beet and root crops. They have been frozen in the ground, and there is nothing left but to plow them back in the spring. Financial losses are hard.

Denmark, which normally has a temperate climate, has had snow and disrupted traffic. Finland, since it lies furthest from the ocean, has set frost records.

As temperatures have fallen to 20 and 30 degrees of frost (Centigrade) and snow has descended by the foot, so have everyday complaints risen. Women often say how they loathe putting on layers of wool and fur. The year for them, they feel, should consist of one long summer, bare legs and light print dresses.

It is not as if the cold is unusual; it is simply earlier than it ought to be.

For over a decade or so winter has come in January. Now, frost came early in November, and the country has been snow-covered since. But whenever winter comes, the Swedes are surprised, and it is standard newspaper fodder to state bitterly about the snow, shivering humanity, and the possibility of a favorable turn in the weather.

The Norwegians take it differently. Early frost and snow mean to them skiing and outdoor life, and weather reports tend to be scanned for signs of a long and continuous winter.

There is something special about these first big snowfalls," wrote an Oslo newspaper on the front page after a cold, snowy, November weekend. "One feels strong, and leaves off like a foal in a meadow."

But between the Swedish and Norwegian extremes, there lies a wealth of everyday trouble and concern. In northern Sweden, where snow is a rarity, trains have stopped, roads have

Today in History

Henry Ford's "peace ship," Oscar II, sailed for Europe 50 years ago today—in 1915—as the climax of anti-war and sometimes anti-British agitation in the United States.

First World War: Anglo-French leaders conferred at Calais. An Austrian flotilla sank two Italian steamships and 10 Montenegro sailing vessels.

Second World War: Twenty-five years ago today—in 1940—the British Midlands region was bombed at night. The RAF brought down eight Italian aircraft over Albania.

Multiplication of Hypothesis

A COORDING to figures quoted in the press recently—figures attributed to the developers who are hoping to erect high-rise apartments at Myrtle Springs—the tax revenue from this venture will amount to $66,710 annually.

At first we were delighted at the prospect of this municipal windfall; but a certain caution born of previous disillusionments led us to make further inquiries. We consulted the Oak Bay tax record, and discovered to our surprise that the Ruyard Kipling yields a mere $15,962 a year in taxes.

It may be, of course, that the Ruyard Kipling is very small potatoes compared to the potential palace in Cadboro Bay. But we doubt it. We are far more inclined to suspect that people eager to commence the enrolment of our university with a wall of profitable concrete, have discovered that an hypothesis multiplied by a mill rate produces a remarkably persuasive figure with which to confuse the taxpayer.

BUS PATRON

Who's Boss?

Your readers who are interested in education generally and in the Greater Victoria public school system in particular will have noted the statement recently to the school board by the district superintendent, Mr. John Gough, that he, and not the school board, has jurisdiction over senior high school newspapers. This statement is very much open to question, and would seem to indicate an attitude that smacks of dictatorship.

The school board represents the people. Mr. Gough is appointed by the B.C. government, which also represents the people, to advise the school board, and "to exercise general supervision over educational matters," as the Public Schools Act puts it. This is very general, and nowhere does the act give the district superintendent "jurisdiction" over such a particular matter as the high school newspapers so as to deny the school board any power to affect policy in this matter.

It would seem that we have an all-too-common case of a public official exercising power which he hasn't got. This is the same official who last year banned a book from Victoria high schools over the protests of many English teachers. It is now up to the Greater Victoria School Board, representing the people, to put this public official in his place. Despite the district superintendent's awesome title, and his many years of experience in "advising," or perhaps we might better say "ordering about" school boards, it would seem that he needs to be reminded that he is fundamentally an expert helper of the school board.

Being a teacher, I must, for obvious reasons, remain

Protest Recalled

Your correspondent Mr. Strahan writing in your issue of Nov. 30, makes a good case in defense of the people who pay rent. It can be remembered when Premier Bennett and the late Mrs. Tilly Harkin crossed the floor of the House in protest against the 3 per cent tax.

It's quite unlike that "wizards" of finance do make miscalculations.

The premier lives in an apartment. Does he pay taxes? A little soul searching of our public officials might serve to bring a modicum of reason into their thinking.

Let's organize a tenants' association, and put in aldermen pledged to insist on justice being established for all citizens. As things are now something is going to blow up, and put these "wizards" out of business.

A. CAROLYN BAYFIELD,
Empress Hotel.

Small Dividend

Your correspondent Mr. J. E. Strahan says that all a tenant has after "20 years is a pile of rent receipts."

Well, whose fault is that? People who choose, voluntarily, to live in apartments in order to avoid gardening and the other responsibilities of home ownership, must accept

In Perspective

Critical Congress

By MAX FREEDMAN from Washington

WHEN Congress meets again in January, its members will face a difficult problem of conscience. They will have to decide whether they will continue to support the war in Viet Nam unconditionally or whether they will begin to ask some unpopular but probing questions. Let one side issue be disposed of at once. It is a wicked libel to suggest that any member of Congress who asks these questions or makes these criticisms is guilty of bringing aid to the Communist enemy. There is a tradition that American troops committed to battle receive full and unwavering support regardless of any divisions on American policy. That tradition will neither be broken nor weakened now. Congress will continue to support the growing military commitment even while it asks some anxious questions about the purpose and drift of American policy.

Until now the criticism has been in the Senate rather than the House. Even the Senate's criticism has been muted for several months. The critical voices gradually fell silent lest they be accused of dividing the country in a time of crisis. This respect for the national interest should be held to their credit now, for their silence no less than their criticism was a tribute to their sense of responsibility.

On the public record, no critic in the group of senators who followed the lead of men like Fulbright, Church or McGovern has any need to apologize for his doubts or his criticisms. What they said is a warning compares very favorably today with what was said in defense by the president and Secretary Rusk and Secretary McNamara. They warned of the danger of drifting into a situation in Viet Nam where the military stakes would rise precisely as the policy objectives became more obscure or more difficult to reach. That is exactly the position.

Several months ago the critics warned us that North Viet Nam had a large and uncommitted army which it could put into battle "apart from the guerrilla forces in the Viet Cong." It required no military genius to foresee that these trained North Viet Nam divisions would be sent to fight as American bombing attacks grew more severe and as the battles in South Viet Nam became more intense.

The bombing raids have not broken the will to resist in North Viet Nam. They have simply brought North Viet Nam as an organized military force into the struggle in addition to the guerrilla troops; and there are plenty more North Viet Nam divisions ready for action as new American troops arrive. What is to be the end of all this? Is there to be a cruel and wasteful stalemate or a steadily wider area of destruction as American power is used with less restraint? The sad truth is that we have been given no clearer answer to these military questions than we have to the basic policy questions.

No fair observer, studying the record, can doubt that the U.S. administration has made its case when it argues that no real Communist offer for an honorable settlement took place a year ago. The administration deserves censure not for what it is saying now but for its delays and denials months earlier, for shirking away from the more difficult questions of peace talks, and for having its present endeavor extorted from it as an act of necessity in response to public criticism. In reality, the administration's search for a peaceful settlement is much better than this lamentable episode suggests; but it has no one but itself to blame if this clumsy performance has kindled new doubts of its purposes.

It has also failed to identify the true nature of the criticism in Congress. The Democratic critics are not advocating peace by appeasement, and the Republican critics are not seeking a bigger war. The Democrats are saying that it is impossible to have a military solution while there is a void on policy; and the Republicans are saying that the country is not yet getting an adequate return on its massive military commitment.

Can anyone deny that there is a policy vacuum? There has not been a single new idea, or even a fresh formulation of an old policy, since the president spoke in Baltimore early this year. There is a growing danger that the military agenda will dominate all discussion and narrow the range of policies that should always be open to the president. In nothing is the task of Congress more important than in its duty to prevent the policy debate from being usurped and supplanted by the requirements of the battlefield.

In the Sudan

Red Tide Rising

By PATRICK SEALE from Beirut

WITH the banning of the Communist party in the Sudan—it will now go underground—more educated young Sudanese will be driven to the extreme left as the only alternative to conservatism and Islamic seclusion.

At stake may be the whole future of the multi-party democratic government restored a year ago when General Abboud's military dictatorship was overthrown.

The leaders of the Sudanese Communist Party are highly trained and dedicated men. But their importance lies in their having secured the sympathy of the great majority of graduates. The tragedy of the Sudan is that no centre party has emerged to fill the vacuum between extreme left and extreme right.

Early in November a student at the Teachers' Institute in Khartoum publicly declared that he was a Communist and an atheist and that he was proud of it. He also made some derogatory remarks about the prophet Mohammed and his wife Aisha.

Muslim opinion was inflamed. The student was arrested and the supreme Shariah board—the highest authority on Koranic law—ruled that he must repent of his apostasy "on pain of death." It called on parliament to pass legislation to protect the nation from the "corruption of Communism."

The incident provided the government with an occasion to strike at the Communists whose growing strength was causing alarm.

The Communist party has twice intervened decisively in the modern history of the Sudan. The first time was in 1953 when a newly-elected Sudanese parliament had to choose between union with Egypt and complete independence. National Unionist Party advocated union of the Nile Valley while the UMMMA (Nation) Party championed independence. The Communist-Driven their full weight behind the UMMMA and swayed the decision.

Their second major intervention was in engineering General Abboud's overthrow in October last year. The revolution was the revolt of the elite, of the politically conscious.

It was organized by professional bodies, by trade unions of tenant farmers and cotton workers, and by the proletariat of Khartoum. In the planning of the campaign of civil disobedience, in the conscious and deliberate advocacy of the strike weapon, in the resolve with which unarmed civilians defied the army, the Communist party played the leading role. In organization and during it outbroke all other political factions.

The party has two well-organized wings. One is an intellectual wing springing from contacts between Sudanese students and Egyptian Communists at Cairo University in the 1940s. The other is a strongly proletarian wing rooted in the railway workshops in Addis Ababa, North of Khartoum, the Sudan's "city of steel."

But the really striking thing about the Sudan Communist party leaders is that far more of them have risen to prominence in international Communism from organizations than other Arab or African Communists.

Shafiq Ahmad al-Shafiq, a veteran Communist and a former skilled railway worker, was vice-president of the World Federation of Trade Unions in 1957. His colleague Ibrahim Zakaria was secretary of the same organization in 1959. Another leading Sudanese Communist, Ahmad Muhammad Khair, was secretary of the World Council of Peace in 1957 but he quarrelled with his colleagues and went to China in 1960 where he stayed until this year. He makes violently pro-Peking statements to the annoyance of the Russians and is now believed to be trying to form a pro-Chinese Communist splinter group in the Sudan.

Our Readers' Views

To be considered for publication in whole or in part, letters must be on subjects of general interest and be accompanied by writer's name and address. Preference will be given to letters that are brief.

The fact that all they have in the end is a "pile of rent receipts."

A person who, denying himself a lot of money in the early days in order to own his own home, and who works hard to build up an attractive property, has put down stakes into the municipality where he lives, and who, as a taxpayer, is therefore entitled to recognition by the government of that municipality.

No able-bodied citizen is obliged to go on paying rent for 20 years here in Victoria. There are plenty of nice houses going at reasonable prices, and at relatively low taxes compared with other cities across the continent.

Provincial Share Will Be Half Of Total Cost

The municipal affairs department Friday presented Greater Victoria municipalities with a resume showing how hospital costs would be shared if the people vote in favor of a regional hospital district in the Dec. 11 election.

Figures supplied by the Greater Victoria Hospital Planning Council indicated that by 1980, some $26,035,000 will be needed for capital expenditures, including $10,586,100 which will have to be supplied by the community.

City council studied the statistics at a meeting Friday afternoon.

ANALYSIS

The municipal affairs report indicates that a levy of two mills could produce $600,000 in 1966 and up to $780,000 by 1971, based on Greater Victoria's 1964 population and 1965 assessment figures and the growth which can be expected in future years.

Breakdown of the 1966 figure which could be raised for regional hospital purposes on the basis of 50 per cent on assessment and 50 per cent on population, with the mill rates in brackets:

Victoria $202,432 (1.96), Saanich $188,823 (2.18), Oak Bay $122,571 (1.787), Esquimalt $13,915 (2.845), Central Saanich $13,003 (1.92), Sidney $9,704 (1.87), North Saanich $12,617 (1.66) and unorganized territory $65,860 (1.767), for a total of $605,925.

Friday following a one-and-a-half hour meeting of the council during which Aldermen thrashed out the contentious issue which is, by far, the hottest question of the civic election campaign now in progress.

With the information available and the uncertainties of costs, and future needs we cannot guarantee to the ratepayers that two mills will necessarily be sufficient to carry out the city's share of the 15-year construction program," said the second paragraph of the statement.

At the request of municipal councils the Victoria and District Hospital Planning Council prepared a forecast of needs in Greater Victoria for the next 15 years. Total: $26,000,000.

The money would be raised with a property tax levy of not more than two mills. For the whole proposed district, which would include school districts 61, 62 and 63, the levy would raise about $600,000 a year.

Paragraph of the statement: "City council does not agree that the proposed share to be borne by land and improvements is equitable, because of the burden to the landowner and the fact that hospitals are used by all the people of the province."

The statement affirmed the principle that the local community has responsibility for hospital capital cost but recommends that every effort be made toward more equitable contributions by senior governments on capital financing.

NEED ACUTE

And, finally, in a statement which was described as unanimous, the council reaffirmed the fact that, despite the fact that it was not completely satis-field with the government's proposed formula, the need was so acute that an affirmative vote should be cast for the hospital referendum.

Thus ended weeks of discussion culminating in a series of meetings, one of which was attended by municipal representatives from all over the proposed district along with department of municipal affairs representatives.

It was suspected that the qualifications in the council statement were inserted so that it could be called unanimous.

At least one alderman, Geoffrey Edgelow, is known to be far from happy with the proposed government plan and been outspoken in his criticism.

Nevertheless the preamble to the Friday statement said: "City council at its meeting today, Dec. 3, unanimously agreed on the following points."

It was suspected that the qualifications in the council statement were inserted so that it could be called unanimous.

NEED ACUTE

And, finally, in a statement which was described as unanimous, the council reaffirmed the fact that, despite the fact that it was not completely satis-

there's a lot more to a '66 GMC pickup than meets the eye

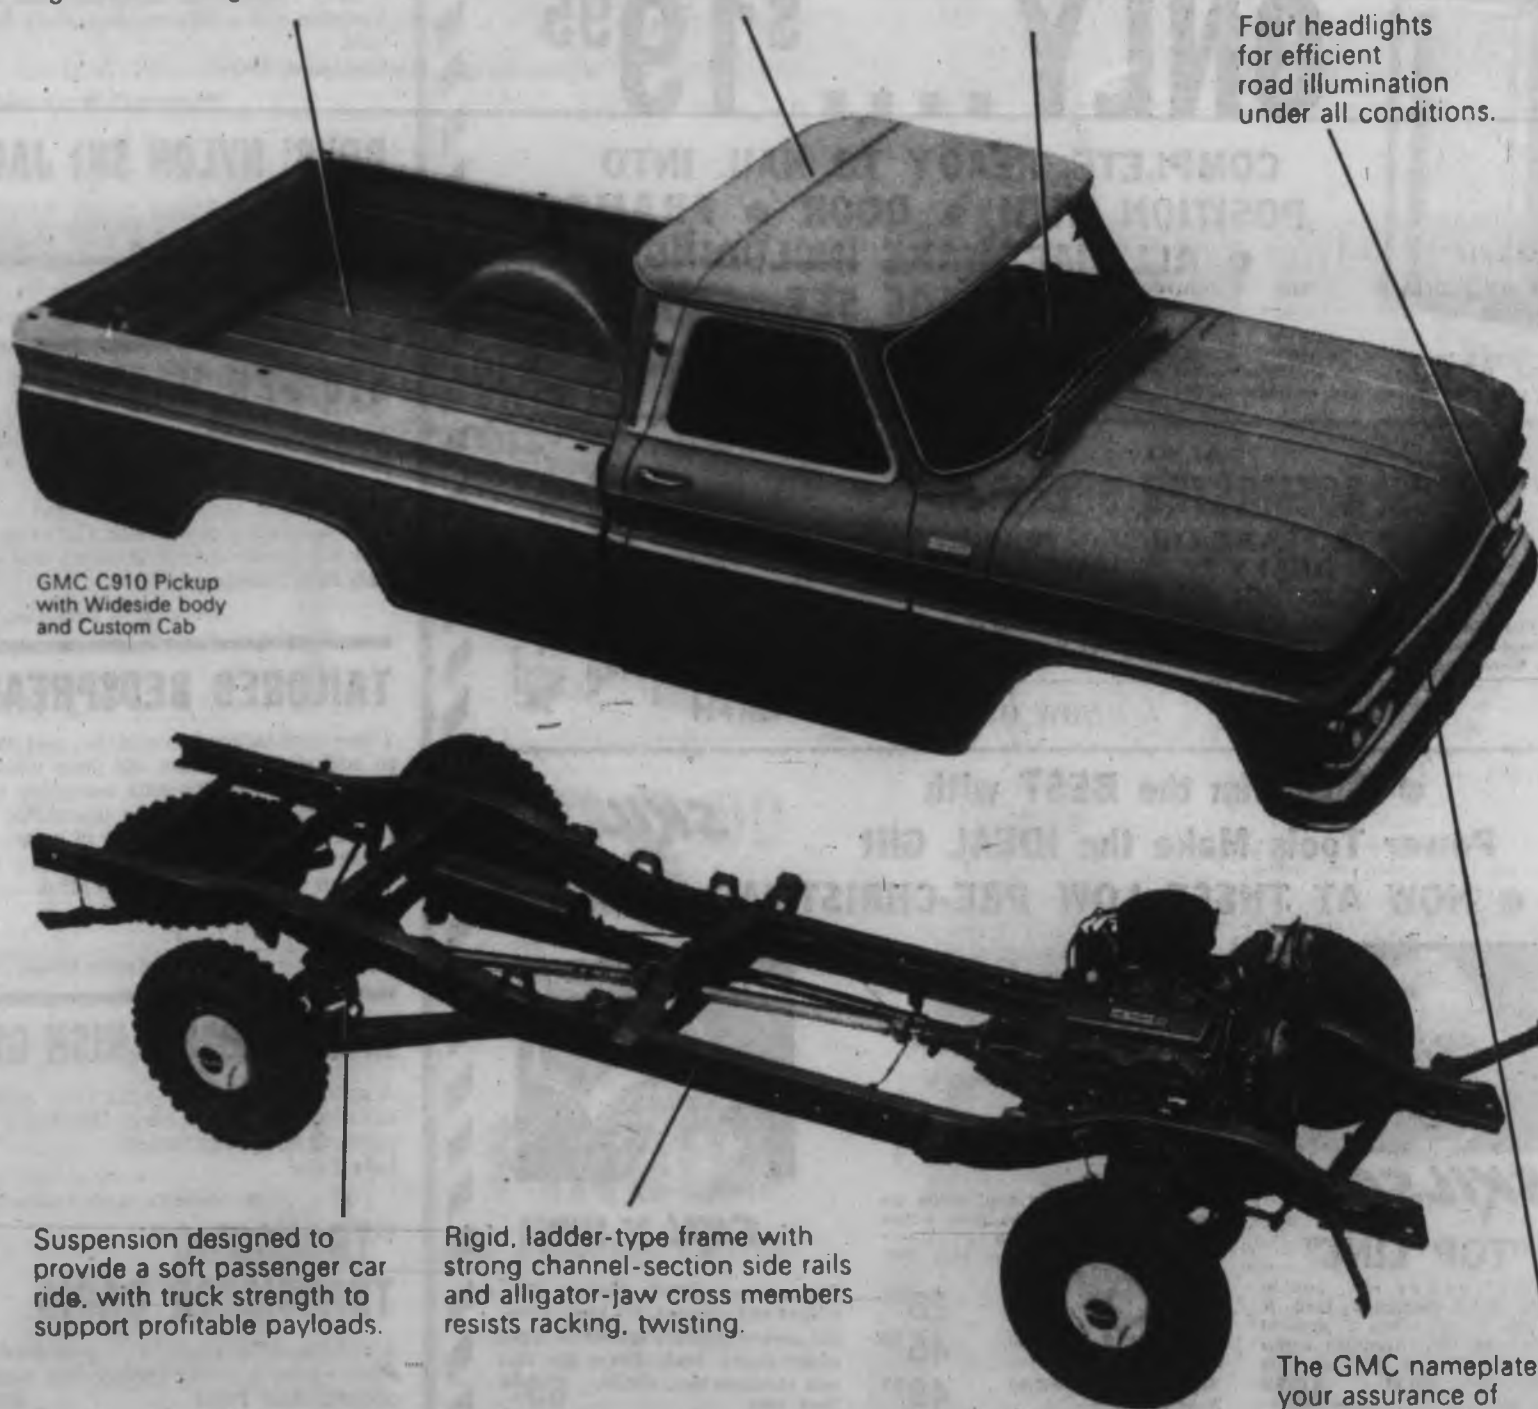

GMC C910 Pickup with Stepside body

Chemically-preserved wood deck can't rust or "drum"; steel skid-strips ease loading and unloading; tailgate is sand-tight.

Double-steel roof with heavy, sandwiched insulation, protects cab interior from heat, cold, cuts down noise.

Printed circuits for instrument panel eliminates confused tangle of wires, makes repair and circuit tracing easy.

GMC C910 Pickup with Wideside body and Custom Cab

Suspension designed to provide a soft passenger car ride, with truck strength to support profitable payloads.

Rigid, ladder-type frame with strong channel-section side rails and alligator-jaw cross members resists racking, twisting.

A GENERAL MOTORS VALUE

GMC Pickups are good looking. Comfortable too...all year 'round...with heavy insulation and double-steel walls and roof which keep heat outside in summer, inside in winter. GMCs combine sedan comfort with truck ruggedness. That's important. Any length trip becomes a pleasure. The new 250 cu. in. 155-horsepower standard six makes load carrying easy. The chemically-treated wood deck can't rust, and has inlaid steel strips for easy loading and unloading. The tailgate is sand-tight, with easy-action latches. For extra performance, select the 292 cu. in. six 170 hp engine or one of two V8s at 175 or 220 horsepower. Automatic transmissions are available on most models too. GMC Pickups come in half, three-quarter, and one ton sizes. There's a right one for you. Get GMC Engineering Leadership working for you in '66.

Tax Agents Blitz U.S. Nazis

ARLINGTON, Va. (UPI) — The tax collector Friday blitzkrieged George Lincoln Rockwell's American Nazi Party.

Internal Revenue Service agents swooped down on Nazi headquarters in this Washington suburb, seized its records and property, and padlocked the doors for non-payment of $5,278 in taxes the IRS claims the Nazis owe the government.

An agency spokesman said four tax liens were filed against the group in September but that no money was paid. He said the seizure was ordered "simply as a last resort."

"We cannot pay the money," Rockwell said. "The American Nazi Party is now in the hands of the government."

Cancer Clinic Helps Children

By ERIC WOODROW

LIMA (CP) — Twenty Peruvian children suffering from cancer are being treated in a new children's clinic donated by the Canadian colony in Peru.

Though some are too ill to benefit much, the last days of their short lives will at least be a little more comfortable and happy.

Those who recover will do so because of the generosity of Canadians in providing the clinic, the first of its kind in Peru and the largest in Latin America.

Peruvian President Fernando Belaunde, opening the clinic, thanked the Canadians who had contributed money and worked to make the clinic a reality.

Nearly $25,000 has been raised by the Canadian Society in Peru since J. A. Grant, now living in Vancouver, and Stuart Huns, suggested the idea.

Also present at the formal opening were Freeman Tovell, retiring Canadian ambassador who delayed his departure for Ottawa to attend, and Peru's new prime minister, Daniel Becerra de la Flor, who also holds the health portfolio.

FOUNDED IN 1937

Executive members of the Canadian Society who were present included Fedor Ostojic, president, and Susan Herrera, secretary, both from Toronto; Keith Talbot of Picton, N.S., vice-president; Bob Manson of Vancouver, treasurer; Helen Wood of Halifax; Connie Griffin of Preston, Ont., and three Montrealeers, Pierre Asselin, Andy Guyro and Marie Clusky.

AID TO NEEDY

The Canadian Society was started in 1937 for the purpose of bringing Canadians together to aid charitable organizations. Toys and food parcels are donated to sick and needy children at Christmas, a dental chair and equipment were supplied to one of Lima's barrios (shanty-towns).

Quakers Want French

Ukrainians Seek Protection for All Ethnic Groups

TORONTO (CP)—Appeals for and against the spread of French throughout Canada were heard by the royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism Friday as it closed out its final Toronto public hearings.

Several groups suggested measures to further the idea of Canada as a two-language country. One called for a halt to the impetus for biculturalism.

Miscellaneous steps for boosting bilingualism were proposed by the Canadian Federation of University Women, the Society of Friends (Quakers) and school and library groups from Sudbury and London, Ont.

The 30,000-member Canadian League for Ukraine's Liberation urged the exchange of artists between Quebec and the rest of Canada.

Mrs. M. J. Sabia of Toronto, national president of the University Women, also suggested during questioning by the commission that federal funds be provided for the universities to have a continuing program for training teachers in conversational French.

Mrs. Margaret MacLellan of Ottawa, immediate past president and a former government employee, expressed some fear about over-stressing bilingualism in the civil service, though she said it should be used in "goodly measure" and should be mandatory for some top jobs.

A group of French teachers from secondary schools in the London district recommended a federal agency to promote biculturalism, federal aid for teacher and student exchanges with Quebec and the extension of CBC French networks to southwestern Ontario.

The Quaker group, representing 800 persons, asked for constitutional amendments to broaden official bilingualism and promote the cultural life of ethnic minorities. It recommended official bilingualism for federal governments and those of Ontario and New Brunswick as well as Quebec, and in national transport and communications.

It also asked that the CBC be more active in broadcasting concerts, plays and documentaries showing cultural contributions of ethnic minorities.

This point was echoed by the Ukrainian league. Spokesman Stanley Frolick, a Toronto lawyer, said anyone listening to the CBC would get the impression Canada has "no Ukrainian music or even any Ukrainian Canadians."

Main recommendation of the Ukrainian group was that constitutional linguistic rights should be extended to ethnic groups besides English and French.

Rezoning Plan Protested

A proposal to rezone a portion of Begbie Street to allow construction of an extensive garden apartment development is opposed by a ratepayer who recently bought a property on Vining Street. In a letter to the city clerk, to be applied to the apartment...

ments is not made clear, the letter states. It is apparent, it adds, that lowest cost finish will lead to a slum in "one year instead of five." Not enough research has been done, the letter says, asking that the outlined objections be read into the minutes of the next hearing on the project.

More Rooms Needed

Migrant Pupils Boosting Cost of Schools

Why are British Columbia's public school costs so high? One reason, says Education Minister Peterson, is because some 6,000 public school pupils will migrate here this year from other Canadian provinces.

200 NEW CLASSROOMS
The 6,000 extra students represent the equivalent of 200 additional new classrooms worth $3,000,000 and an annual operating cost of more than $2,000,000.

Mr. Peterson, speaking in Richmond, where he officially opened the new Samuel Brighouse Elementary School Friday night, said total public school enrolment for the current year, exclusive of Grade 13, is expected to reach 415,000.

He said the figure of 6,000 represents the expected excess of family allowance-receiving children, age six to 15 years, entering the province beyond the number who are leaving. This does not include gain or loss to foreign countries.

Heavy migration of other Canadians to British Columbia is caused by "employment opportunities, climate and other amenities . . . and this explains part of the high cost of education," the education minister said.

School-age inter-provincial increases for 1964 was about 4,000, compared with only 2,600 for 1963, he said.

Trees, Lights

Victoria Dons Festive Dress

One hundred and sixty 10-foot, silver-sprayed evergreens were spotted on streets in downtown Victoria this week as a clear indication that business people feel the festive season is here.

Part of the Chamber of Commerce Christmas program, the trees are set in red boxes. They are being decorated with colored lights.

BETTER, BIGGER
Chamber spokesmen feel the trees are not only better sprayed this year, but they point out they are two feet taller than those used in the 1964 effort.

Meanwhile, the city is implementing another Chamber of Commerce project in Centennial Square.

An excavation is being made in the lawn on the west side of the square for a 40-foot "singing tree" which will be a permanent feature of the Christmas season in Victoria.

A co-operative city-chamber venture, the tree will be situated close to the paved section of the square so that local choirs may stand beneath its brightly-decorated branches and sing carols and numbers appropriate to the season on the nights before Christmas.

Local musical organizations will provide choral groups.

The excavation in the square will be covered and sodded after Christmas, but it will be so constructed that it can be used annually.

Miners Killed In Germany

HERNE (AP) — A coal mine explosion Friday killed two West German miners and injured three others. The explosion occurred about 2,380 feet below the ground in a shaft of the Hilsder Huette concern. The explosion was the third in 10 days in Ruhr Valley mines. The previous blasts claimed four lives.

Drug Ring Broken Up

NEW YORK (UPI) — U.S. federal authorities Friday announced that an $11,000,000 narcotics ring, accused of smuggling more than 100 pounds of pure heroin into the United States on commercial airliners, was broken up with the arrest of two key distributors.

Supervising U.S. customs agent David Cardozo disclosed the breakup of the ring in the New York metropolitan area following the arrest of a woman in New Jersey and a man on Long Island. A third member of the ring was arrested Sunday and a fourth was being sought.

out and fired machine-guns at the U.S. MP on guard.

Although wounded, the MP battled with the Viet Cong until his ammunition gave out and the terrorists ran to a nearby intersection and apparently escaped.

The truck blew up with a thunderous roar, cutting electric power throughout a wide area. Within minutes of the blast U.S. and Vietnamese troops and police reached the scene, where a fire blazed in a Vietnamese building.

PARKED BUSES

American wounded and one dead U.S. were carried quickly to the Navy Hospital. A second American died of wounds later.

Vietnamese firemen put out the blaze and rescue workers pulled Vietnamese dead and wounded from apartments across the street and from among the parked buses.

U.S. MPs forcibly barred American and other personnel who tried to enter the blast area, pointing out other explosives had been planted there.

The technique of a second explosion was used with devastating effect in the bombing last June 27 of the My Canh floating restaurant in the Saigon River.

It was not known why the Claymore mine did not explode.

MASS KILLER

The Claymore mine, a standard item in the U.S. military arsenal is made to hurl metal fragments in any desired direction. It is rated as one of the most effective mass killers used in the Viet Nam war.

A similar device was used in the My Canh restaurant bombing.

Beavers Rescued

By HARRY YOUNG
Business Editor

A Utah man is credited with having saved the North American beaver from extinction, by providing the much-trapped fur-bearer with the protection of beaver ranches.

Weaver's Beaver Ltd., formed by Mark Weaver in 1925, has had many ups and downs, largely because the beavers themselves refused to co-operate by declining to breed in captivity.

Now Weaver's eager beavers are becoming more domesticated and the firm has 65 ranches on which more than 25,000 beavers live the life of Riley.

The first B.C. ranch is about to be set up at Honey, but it isn't a poor man's hobby.

Each pair of beavers costs $2,400, and the minimum outlay for a ranch of 200 pens is $25,000. Present value of the Weaver beavers is estimated at $25,000,000.

A LENGTHY WAIT

Sunloch Mines, which has a royalty interest through a subsidiary in the Cowichan Copper mine at Jordan River, is paying its very first dividend next month.

Incorporated in B.C. in 1917, Sunloch owns considerable mining claims around the Cowichan operation, and 84 per cent of its shares are owned by Consolidated Mining and Smelting. The first payout in 49 years is six cents. But it's a start anyway.

LUXURY NO MORE

Houses with two or more bathrooms are no longer a luxury; they are a near-necessity, particularly if the houses have two or more bedrooms.

The Canadian Plumbing and Mechanical Contractors Association says that one-bathroom houses are on the way out. The trend towards larger families is largely responsible, according to the association.

It claims it is good business to install two bathrooms in a new house, because it adds to the sale value and is cheaper to install as part of the building plan than it is to have a second bathroom added later.

Owners of older homes can also save money by installing a second bathroom, says the Association. Resale value is increased and new bathroom and heating units can often cut operating costs with their greater efficiency.

PAY TAX LATER

One of the advantages of the new discount type of saving certificates now being introduced by Royal Trust, Bank of Montreal and other financial houses, is that income tax on them may be paid either annually or when the certificate reaches maturity.

"In cases where incomes fluctuate this latitude can be important and gives savings certificates of this type an added attraction," says a tax expert.

Photographers Say Letter Misinterpreted

Charges that a wrong interpretation was put upon a letter they sent to city hall were made Friday by Victoria photographers Jim Ryan and Don Ryan.

The Ryan brothers are members of the local unit of the Professional Photographers of B.C., which recently wrote to the mayor and council complaining that a city employee, unlicensed by either the city or province, took pictures used in a city brochure.

Such employment of an unlicensed operator, the letter stated, was in direct violation of municipal and provincial ordinances.

STATEMENT CONTESTED

In conjunction with the same complaint the Ryan brothers wrote Ald. A. W. Toone.

Explaining the affair to council committee, City Manager Dennis Young said that it stemmed from a complaint by the Ryan brothers that they were not getting enough city business.

In a further letter, sent Friday to Ald. Robert Baird, chairman of the city legislative committee, the photographer brothers contested the manager's statement.

'READ IT ALL'

Purpose and content of their letter to Ald. Toone, they said Friday, was to complain of the city's "Do-it-yourself" policy in photography rather than a dearth of city hall business.

Had the letter to Ald. Toone been read in its entirety, they said, this would have been made clear. They asked a full reading at the next meeting of city council.

Grounded Launch Rescued

After a jittery day and an even more jittery night, the 30-foot motor launch Discovery III is snug on the ways at Oak Bay Marina, out of the clutches of a predicted southeast gale.

The launch, owned by Capt. Ernest Beaumont of Discovery Island, broke loose from her mooring last Friday and ran hard aground on Mary Tod Island. Her port side planking was smashed in and the keel was broken.

While gale warnings continued to be issued a crew of four worked Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday to patch the craft so it could be towed to the marina for complete repairs.

Island Tug and Barge's Island Ranger stood by all day Wednesday and through the night to make a desperation tow attempt if the gale sprang up. The tug pulled the Discovery clear at high tide Thursday.

Bob Wright, manager of the Oak Bay Marina, said another southwest gale would have smashed the launch to pieces. Work on the launch will be done by Oak Bay boatyard at the marina.

Sale Dec. 8

The Greater Victoria Association for the Retarded will hold the fifth annual Christmas tea and sale on Wednesday, Dec. 8, from 2 to 5 p.m., at 1450 Elford Street.

There will be an assortment of baked goodies such as mince-meat, pickles, Christmas cake, cookies, cakes and nut loaves. Craft products and novelties as well as King Alfred cakes, Yule logs and treated fir cones will also be on sale. These are all made by young adults attending the centre.

Afternoon tea will also be prepared and served by the young adults. This is an opportunity to come and see what is being done at the Elford Occupation Centre.

Martin Says

Canada Ready To Retain Cyprus Force

OTTAWA (UPI) — External Affairs Minister Martin has indicated Canada is prepared to continue its 1,000-man peace-keeping force on Cyprus for another six months.

The UN force, to which Canada is a major contributor, comes up for renewal Dec. 26. The UN Security Council is expected to meet to discuss it on or about Dec. 10.

Canada—one of two nations which paid its own way in the Cyprus force—would continue that policy if the UN called for an extension of the mandate, Martin said.

NO UN MONEY
This policy would have to be continued because there is no money in the treasury of the United Nations.

Keeping the peace in Cyprus has cost Canada about $1,000,000 since the first took on the role in March, 1964. England also shoulders the cost of its own

Little Hope Held For Rig Crew
HONG KONG (Reuters) — Little hope remained Friday of finding any more survivors of a wrecked oil rig which capsized and broke in two in the South China Sea.

Only one—a Canadian listed as Kip McKeever of Calgary—of the 14-man crew was rescued. Another Canadian was believed lost.

Failures Boosted Load

Automation One Villain In Southwest Blackout

EL PASO, Tex. (UPI) — Automation turned out Friday to be one of the villains in a gigantic power failure Thursday night that blacked out a huge southwestern area where there are four important military bases and the homes of nearly 1,000,000 persons.

Electricity started failing at 7:45 p.m., and it was 10:15 p.m. before electrical power was completely restored.

Only one case of looting was reported and police found people

PROBE ORDERED

President Johnson instructed chairman Joseph C. Swidler of the Federal Power Commission to have the failure investigated. What started the whole thing was the failure of a natural gas pressure regulator at El Paso Electric Co.'s Newman power plant. The regulator controls the pressure of natural gas burning under boilers at the plant.

UNSTABLE FLAMES

Then automation came in: The failure of the regulator caused unstable gas flames under the boilers. Flame monitors, which keep track of the way the fire is burning, shut off the gas under the boilers. As the steam pressure dropped, other automatic devices came into action. They rejected the load on the generators.

At this point, human operators took over and shut down the units to protect turbines that cost many thousands of dollars.

TOOK TIME

Technicians tried to throw the power load on the Rio Grande plant, near the New Mexico state line, but only one of five generating units was running there and it could not handle the 180,000 kilowatt load from the Newman plant.

It took time to get all five units operating at the Rio Grande plant. The gas regulator was repaired at the other plant and it went back into operation, but that also took time.

A violent storm hit Hope, Dec. 4, 1965. Everyone rushed to the street fearing the houses would fall. Two verandas were blown down, the Hudson's Bay Company flagstaff toppled, all fences were levelled, the blacksmith shop was destroyed and wooden sidewalks were lifted and tossed up to 12 yards. All connecting roads were blocked.

Identifying Done By Dentures

KINGSFORD, Tenn. (AP) — A man walked into a supermarket here and asked the cashier to cash a cheque.

"Do you have some identification?" asked Mrs. Margie Castle, the cashier.

The man reached into his mouth and pulled out a denture on which his name was branded.

Mrs. Castle cashed the cheque.

'Hanging Picture' Turns Realistic

AKRON, Ohio—A 19-year-old Akron youth who wanted to take a picture of himself hanging by a rope so he could show the photograph to his girl friend as a joke died when the stunt went wrong, sheriff's deputies said.

James M. Forester died in hospital eight hours after deputies got him down from a barn rafter where he was hanging and succeeded in reviving him temporarily.

Deputies said Forester and another youth were in the barn to make the picture. Forester stood on the hood of an automobile, with a rope around his neck and over a rafter of the barn, deputies said.

The other youth, Stephen Sucher, 19, of Medina, was quoted as saying he backed the car away to make a more realistic picture and Forester slipped off the hood.

LONDON—Her head tied in a babushka and wearing a fur coat, Queen Elizabeth drove from the airport here to Buckingham Palace after returning from a Sandringham visit.

PARIS—Painter Pablo Picasso, 84, had surgery for a bile duct condition at an unnamed Paris hospital recently but has since recovered and left the hospital, doctors disclosed. They said the operation was uneventful and his post-operative recovery entirely satisfactory.

LONDON—Forty-five Impressionist paintings brought the equivalent of $235,183 in an auction at Christie's which lasted only an hour. The sellers were Mr. and Mrs. John Boulton of Caracas, Venezuela. Boulton's father kept records on what he paid for 32 of them—$10,609. Those 32 brought $381,200 at the auction.

OTTAWA—The all-male jury at the trial of Brig. John Bester Allan, 51, former vice-quarter-master-general of the Canadian Army has been excluded until Tuesday while the defence argues a motion.

LOS ANGELES—The estranged husband of a former high-fashion model won custody of their seven-year-old daughter when a judge decided Devina Moran Murray was more interested in her career than in the girl. Custody of Allison McKenzie Murray was granted to the father, Alan M. Murray, 33, by California Superior Court Judge William A. Munnell, pending the outcome of a divorce action.

TEL AVIV—The last plane for Tel Aviv had already left when Brazilian exporter Yeheskel Juri arrived at Rome Airport on his way to see his seriously ill father. He chartered an Italian jetliner for $7,000 and completed the trip as the only passenger in the 95-seat plane. Doctors told Juri when he arrived that his 85-year-old father was a little better.

HONG KONG—The New China News agency Thursday night denied reports that D. N. Aidit, Indonesian Communist party chief, is dead. It said rumors he had been shot were fabricated by Indonesian right wing newspapers "to throw dust in the eyes of the public and create confusion."

A commerce graduate of the University of Manitoba, Robertson replaces Norman Barton who resigned a week after the new university opened in September.

LONDON—Grenville Beckett, 74, one of Britain's leading authorities on the newspaper industry, has died at his Surrey home.

Business Booms In Province

Nearly 25 per cent more companies were incorporated in B.C. during November than in the same month last year, Attorney-General Robert Bonner said Friday.

This, coupled with no increase in bankruptcies in recent years, reveals a pattern of business strength in the province at the present time, he said.

Incorporations for November included 416 B.C. companies, 35 companies outside the province and 25 societies. The November 1964 figures listed 329 B.C. companies, 29 from outside the province and 27 societies.

Goodwill Enterprises

Director Seeks 'Aid' As Stock Runs Low

Goodwill Enterprises is rapidly running out of stock to keep their employees at work.

Executive director S. M. Uel Rea said Thursday the need for warm winter clothing for all ages, small electrical home appliances, shoes, dishes and utensils, and bedroom and dining room furniture increases with the approach of Christmas.

"With more repairable clothing and household articles, Goodwill Enterprises would be able to provide job training and employment to additional handicapped people," said Mr. Rea.

About 20 different vocational trades are represented in the work done at Goodwill.

"People who come to Goodwill generally have not worked before, have had difficulties in the competitive labor market, need training, or need to learn new vocations as a result of acquiring a handicap," he said.

"By the time they have received Goodwill's help, they are often able to move on to normal jobs in commerce and industry, or at least they can work in the Goodwill Enterprises shops," he said.

A phone call to 385-6791 Monday through Saturday will bring a truck to the door, or contributions may be left at booths located at shopping centres throughout Greater Victoria.

Britannia Beach was discovered as a source of minerals in 1888. Some credit the original find to Dr. A. A. Forbes of Squamish, other say Oliver Furry, who staked first claims, was first to realize the ore deposits.

Ferry Firing Urged

The Provincial Civil Service Commission has issued a recommendation on the future employment of five crew members of a B.C. government ferry who were suspended after they refused to sail Oct. 17, saying their captain swore at them.

The commission recommended Thursday that mate Norman Bellham be fired, that temporary employees William McDowell and Richard Stapleton be fired on the understanding that the ferry service may consider them for re-employment, and that waitresses Mary Kosterewa and Mrs. Isabel Elliott be rehired as of Thursday. However, the latter has resigned from the ferry service since being suspended.

The five walked off the ferry Powell River Queen, which forms a part of the highway system linking Powell River with Vancouver, and briefly picketed the vessel.

Monny Aldous, general manager of the B.C. Ferry Authority, said the commission report stated the authority had acted correctly in suspending the five at the time of the incident.

A government order-in-council is necessary to fire the mate.

Old Vic Players Rehearse Nativity Play

Scene from Starsong, nativity play to be presented by Old Vic Players at St. Andrew's Kirk Hall on Courtney Street 8:15 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 11, shows Karey Monruff on floor as Nana, Vernon McConnell as Arod and Mrs. Helen Hamilton as Octavia. With play will be St. Andrew's Presbyterian choir in concert of Christmas carols. Choir's portion of proceeds will be for church centennial project—new chime bells for belfry. — (William A. Boucher)

Carols Too Noisy

Silent Night Not So Silent

By IAN ARBOL
Church Editor

How many times are we going to hear Silent Night, Holy Night this Christmas season—300 times, 400 times?

The rhetorical question was posed, with a degree of anguish, by Kenneth Ansdell in an interview this week on the subject of church music.

Mr. Ansdell is organist and choir master at St. John's Anglican Church, music master at University School and Victoria chairman of the Royal Canadian College of Organists.

NIKE — BUT . . .

"If we didn't have Silent Night such a lot — in downtown stores as well as on the radio — it would be very nice to hear."

Other Christmas music Mr. Ansdell feels we could do with less is O Holy Night—and Bing Crosby's White Christmas.

A favorite of the choir leader is O Come All Ye Faithful, "both for its words and music."

MUCH TOO GOOEY

Mr. Ansdell likes church music that has vigor. He does not like "the goey, sentimental music that crept into churches in Victorian times and is still with us today."

Mr. Ansdell would cast out half the present hymns in the Anglican hymn book—"at least"—if he had his way.

What are some of the hymns he would throw out?

SIN HYMNS OUT

"Hymns that talk about sin and doom and call themselves children's hymns."

"Hymns that speak of Jesus, Meek and Mild."

"Such hymns lead to a sentimental approach to Christ."

Kenneth Ansdell

Christ was a man! He said some pretty strong things. He didn't make words."

Mr. Ansdell prefers such hymns as Praise to the Lord, the Almighty, King of Creation.

BOTHERS CHILDREN

But as for Tender Shepherd Hear me, Bless Thy Lamb Tonight, "The majority of children around age 11 hate singing that sort of thing."

He criticized the constant repetition of "meaningless clichés."

KEEP WITH IT

"The Blood of the Lamb—for me, that doesn't mean a thing. The language is not with the times. It just doesn't get with the younger generation."

Mr. Ansdell would not want to "get with" the younger generation to the point of having jazz and rock 'n' roll in church—"music thrust down our throats by Tim Pan Alley in New York."

God has to be approached with dignity.

FRIENDLY, DIGNIFIED

"If the Queen of England came to Victoria, she would not be met with jazz bands and back-slapping and How are you, List? We would be extremely friendly, but dignified."

So much more should our approach to God be done with dignity.

"God is the centre of our lives. Often we do not approach Him with dignity in our choice of music or in the way we conduct our church services."

MEETING SET

As chairman of the Royal Canadian College of Organists, Mr. Ansdell has called a meeting of the college to which clergy, choir masters, organists and the general public are invited to discuss church music. It will be held at 8:15 p.m., January 24, in St. John's Church basement meeting room.

A college-sponsored February event will be an adult choir festival in First United. In March, a junior choir festival will be held in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church.

NIX CANNED MUSIC

Some final words by Mr. Ansdell on the trends and future of church music:

"I hope there will never be canned (recorded) music in churches. Some churches have canned chimes—horrid."

"The church used to be the centre of culture, the patron of the arts. The church should be patron again."

Drama-Group Idea Not Really New

Many of the current "innovations" in church modes of worship and fellowship are old-fashioned—including a church drama-group idea started last October at First United Church, which meets from 8 to 10 p.m. every Tuesday in the church lounge.

Miracle and morality plays were done by congregations back in the Middle Ages.

"So far the 10 of us who meet Tuesdays have been reading over scripts, about six of them including TV scripts," said Christian Education director Rob Nelson.

VARIED AGES

The group, from 25 years old to middle age, numbers seven women and three men.

"We'd like at least four more men to take part in the first production we plan—Christ in the Concrete City—which will probably be put on in February or March," said Mr. Nelson.

READINGS

"Meanwhile, we'll continue play-readings this month, with two Christmas plays, one Dec. 7 and the other Dec. 14."

A participant need not be a member of First United, or any other church, to join this adult drama group, said Mr. Nelson, who invites all interested to work for local and world needs.

Dumping Adds To Rio

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP) — Pressed between mountains and sea, Rio is expanding into Guanabara Bay.

By dumping garbage and earth the city has built 300 acres for two four-lane expressways plus a park, along a strip 1,500 feet wide.

The park, called Flamengo, is three miles long. It has gardens and a beach, playgrounds and 25 courts for soccer, volleyball or basketball.

Tractor trains carry people about. They must leave motor cars in parking lots and use passageways to cross the expressways to the park.

These roads let 70,000 cars a day cover in 10 minutes the Copacabana-downtown route that used to take 35.

LANSING BISHOP Dies at 74

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Most Rev. Joseph H. Albers, 74, bishop of the Roman Catholic diocese of Lansing since 1937, has died after a long illness. The diocese includes 15 counties in southwestern Michigan and has 220,000 members.

Sally Ann Meets Challenge

Army Fights Loneliness

The Salvation Army at this Christmas season as for 100 Christmases past has special tactics for the vanquishing of the Christmas syndrome—the dangerous depression that hits many at this time of year.

Psychologists say that Christmas is the most disturbing season of the year for those who are not with family or close friends.

Lonely men and women—even those of usually cheerful temperament—become deeply depressed and, in extreme cases, suicidal during the holiday season.

WIDEN CIRCLE

Each of us knows someone vulnerable to the syndrome; each of us who is part of a "circle" at Christmas can widen that circle to include that friend or acquaintance.

But there are always those outside the pale. It is to these in particular that the Salvation Army directs its special love. Such in need of human contact are the prisoner behind bars, the sick and frightened, the forsaken child and the abandoned residents of skid row.

BRING CHEER

Salvationists bring the cheer of music, conversation, personal concern and a bit of the general festivity that is such a great part of the Christmas observance.

Prisoners often ask Salvationists to send Christmas gifts to their children, "from Daddy."

During counselling sessions

the miracle of Christmas is the sense of diffused love and kindness that the spirit of the season engenders in even the most unlikely individuals.

And the Salvation Army officer—while most citizens are shopping and party-going—is seeking out the wretched and lonely to try to help them experience this miracle of Christmas.

A trickle of cash in an Army kettle can help the Salvation Army help the helpless. Kettles will be set up in Greater Victoria Friday, Dec. 10.

Churchmen Ponder Blackout

Last month's power blackout in the East caused The Anvil, newsletter of Christ Church Cathedral, to ponder the question: "Is our organ sufficiently medieval to operate under the old-fashioned, but reliable power of a busy choirboy?"

"Some trifling mishap could leave us powerless here, The Man Behind the Pillar column writer.

In contrast "to the efficiency of the mysterious East debated by a blown fuse," the writer looked back fondly to "the amazing resiliency of the electrical supply in London—a magnificent British middle of wires and transformers, all exclusive, and all at cross purposes."

The Anvil said no matter how much London was bombed, the electric supply continued to work after a fashion.

"Like most things hopelessly inefficient, it works, whatever the circumstances."

Recording Bets

Palmed Numbers Not Erased, Cost Man $750

Richard Flood had a series of numbers written on the palm of his left hand when he was brought into the city police station Sept. 11.

To Det. Lorne Shandley, the numbers were a code for recording horse racing bets.

Flood denied this but Magistrate William Ostler found him guilty in central magistrate's court Friday of recording bets and fined him $750.

FINED IN MAY

Prosecutor Peter Birkett said Flood had been fined $250 for a similar offence in May.

Magistrate Ostler: "This is open defiance of the court. If you continue this course of conduct, you can expect to go to jail."

Court was told how a policeman saw Flood cradling a telephone on his left shoulder in his premises at 633 Johnson Sept. 11.

GRABBED HAND

Flood was seen to write something on his left palm. The policeman grabbed Flood's hand and there was a struggle.

At one stage Flood licked his left palm and wiped it on his trousers.

He was taken to the police station, court was told, with both arms held.

PHOTOGRAPHED

Det. Douglas Grant said he photographed Flood's palm and in court detailed the writing he found on the palm.

The writing was 606, SUD, 71166, 803, 8, 2, he said.

Det. Shandley said that this was a code used to register bets.

The first series of 606, SUD, 71166 meant to him a "33 cash six up and down" bet.

NOT RECOGNIZED

"This particular bet is not recognized on legal tracks," he said.

He explained that the bet was that horses six and 11 would win their particular races, in this case, races six and seven.

The other series, 803, 8, 2, showed that a bet had been placed on a quinella race. In both cases the track involved was Vancouver, Det. Shandley said.

TWO WALLETS

Det. Lyle Somers said that Flood had $584 in a black wallet and $5 in a brown wallet when arrested.

Flood also had $75 loose in his pocket, Det. Somers said.

Earlier, Det. Joseph Barlow told the court that he removed $151.20 from a till and $50.20 from a cupboard at 633 Johnson.

DEFENCE CLAIM

Defence counsel Jack Gatehouse maintained that the figures were open to interpretation and that the Crown failed to produce any evidence of recording bets.

Magistrate Ostler said he was satisfied from the evidence that Flood was guilty.

Record Docket

Traffic Violators Jam Courtroom

Magistrate J. A. Byers faced a record traffic list in central magistrate's court Friday.

There were 80 people summoned for traffic violations but Magistrate Byers disposed of the list in the two-hour morning session.

The small traffic court was packed and people were forced to wait in the vestibule.

However, the larger criminal court upstairs was almost deserted as Magistrate William Ostler was faced with an unusually small list.

Retirement Deferred By Cabinet

The forthcoming retirement of Patrick J. Mulcahy, deputy minister of mines and petroleum resources, was deferred Friday for three months.

Mr. Mulcahy reaches compulsory retirement age of 65 on Jan. 7, 1966, and would normally have retired on Jan. 31, 1966.

But the provincial cabinet postponed his retirement for a period of three months commencing Feb. 1, "owing to the need of his services for a further period."

Crash Kills Dam Worker

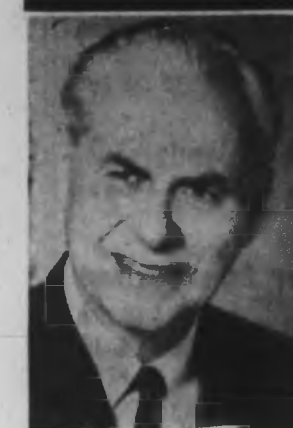

KASLO (CP) — A Roseland man was killed Thursday night near Lardau, about 20 miles north of Kaslo, when his car left the highway.

Dead is Lloyd Joseph O'Hearn. He was employed at the Duncan Dam project.

An inquest has been ordered.

Low Bidder

VANCOUVER (CP) — Mitsubishi Corp. of Japan has submitted an apparent low bid of $1,800,000 for contracts to supply 60 buses to B.C. Hydro and Power Authority for use here and in Victoria, a Hydro spokesman said.

Glib Talkers

'Guests' Flee With TV

Two fast-talking thieves helped themselves to a $100 television set at the Craigflower Motel, 101 Island Highway, early Friday morning.

They booked in at 1:30 a.m. Friday, telling motel owner Robert Houseman they had just arrived from Seattle.

COMPLAIN OF RAT

They were shown to a unit which didn't have television, but one of the men came back to the motel office complaining of a large rat in the unit.

Mr. Houseman then gave them another unit, with television, but again the pair returned to the office.

WERE UPSET

"They said they were upset because there might be more rats around," Mr. Houseman said.

He then gave them a refund and they drove off—with the television set.

LATE VISITORS

The Nutshell Restaurant, 627 Fort, also had some unwelcome visitors overnight.

A small window at the rear of the window was smashed so a door could be hooked open, police said.

About 40 to 50 packets of cigarettes are missing.

Strychnine in Hog Feed

RED DEER (CP)—Pigs that died mysteriously on the farm of National Social Credit Leader Robert Thompson during the recent federal election campaign were killed by strychnine poisoning, it is shown in findings released Friday of tests by Alberta government scientists.

Tests in government laboratories revealed the presence of strychnine in specimens taken from the stomachs of the dead pigs and also in samples of feed obtained on the Thompson farm both inside and outside the hog bar.

Some reports had placed the number of pigs that had died mysteriously on the Thompson farm less than a month ago at as high as 11.

These mysterious deaths of pigs ready to go to the slaughter market and other vandalism on the Thompson farm were publicly revealed Nov. 7—the day before the federal election.

RCMP from Red Deer and Innisfail are still conducting investigations.

The Thompson family pet dog also died from strychnine poisoning.

Last week the container that had held the mixed feed in which strychnine was discovered were cleaned and washed. The dog apparently lapped up some of the water from the washing process. He died shortly after.

Good Word Premature

OTTAWA (CP)—A red-faced citizenship department said Friday it erred earlier this week in announcing Indians would be able to receive welfare and community development services through Ontario government agencies.

Consultations have been held on the matter with Welfare Minister Louis Cecil of Ontario but the federal proposals were mailed only recently.

Soviet Venus Probe Should Be Successful

MOSCOW (AP)—The two unmanned Soviet space ships speeding toward Venus are expected to pass close to the planet on different sides in late February or early March and obtain complementary information, Soviet scientist Leonid Sedov said Friday.

Writing in Pravda, Sedov said the launchings of Venus-2 and Venus-3 last month were faultless and the ships are proceeding along their planned routes. Radio contact has been maintained, he reported.

Venus-2, launched Nov. 12, now is 4,000,000 miles from the earth and Venus-3, launched four days later, is 3,200,000 miles away, Sedov added. He said the space vehicles have been travelling so accurately that their trajectories may not have to be corrected by special engines as originally planned.

Mrs. Pearkes pins Miss Canada rose on Fred Blakeney

'Canada's Finest'

A Fair Rose For First Lady

B.C.'s first lady was introduced Friday to Canada's fairest rose.

Soggy Shoppers Miss Storm's Worst Blow

Christmas shoppers shouldered through rainy, blustery weather in Victoria Friday but escaped the worst blows of a storm that raked Vancouver Island.

From noon to 10 p.m. Victoria got 31 inches of rain. The morning produced this month's first sunshine — six minutes of it.

More gales and showers are due today. Up-island, trees blew over and streams became rivers under the downpour.

Boat anchorages in the Alberni were crowded with owners securing their craft amid 50 mph gusts.

The road to Bamfield between Camp 8 and Sarita River was washed out.

Fallen trees blocked out Corvex for the second time in two days. RCAF Station Comox recorded winds gusting to 65 miles an hour.

The gale will continue today, according to the forecast office.

TURNED DOWN

John Phillippe, president of the association, said it took a lot of doing to get the Miss Canada adopted as the centennial rose.

At one point an American florist, developed and grown only in the U.S. was in the running, but was eventually turned down, in favor of the Miss Canada.

ACROSS CANADA

Miss Canada is the official centennial rose of the Canadian Nursery Trades Association, the Canadian Rose Society and has been recognized by the Canadian Centennial Council.

He said between now and 1967 it is hoped to be able to market 150,000 of the rose bushes across Canada.

ment House was made by Victoria rose grower Fred Blakeney, 963 Arundel Drive, developer of the Miss Canada rose.

The presentation at Government House was made by Mrs. Pearkes, wife of the lieutenant-governor.

MEDIUM PINK

The presentation was arranged by the Horticultural Trades Association of B.C., which was holding its annual convention at the Empress Hotel.

The roses, medium pink on the petals and face and silvery white on the reverse, were picked Friday morning in the association's greenhouses in Toronto and air expressed to Victoria.

SATIN RIBBON

More than 90 members of the association were at the presentation.

Mr. Blakeney, who hybridized the rose in 1957, was no stranger to Mrs. Pearkes. Being a rose fancier herself, she met the Victoria grower at a rose show in Vancouver two years ago.

She said the Miss Canada roses were beautiful, and reminded her of French satin ribbon, with each side of the ribbon having a different color.

John Phillippe, president of the association, said it took a lot of doing to get the Miss Canada adopted as the centennial rose.

Miss Canada is the official centennial rose of the Canadian Nursery Trades Association, the Canadian Rose Society and has been recognized by the Canadian Centennial Council.

He said between now and 1967 it is hoped to be able to market 150,000 of the rose bushes across Canada.

He said the profits from the sales mostly go to promote the industry and to provide scholarships for university horticultural students," he said.

He said the mayor's action will not enhance the chances of election of his "protégé."

"It will only tarnish his own good image which he has so far projected during his term as mayor."

He said there was no place in the civic system for "dynasties."

Candidates seeking election on Dec. 11 are being angered by council leaders naming their choice of candidates.

Mayorality candidate Tony Roberts took exception Friday when Mayor R. B. Wilson threw his weight behind Ald. A. W. Toone in the forthcoming election.

Nanaimo's 'Gift'

Problems Galore For Region

NANAIMO — City council is interested in unloading nine different problems onto a proposed regional district.

Ald. Jack Parker listed: Planning, recreation, fire protection, garbage collection and disposal, operation of the airport, public transportation, police protection, power operation, and ambulance service.

Ald. Parker is a member of the subcommittee working on formation of a regional district from the following areas.

REFERENDUM

Beside Ald. Parker, members of the committee are Tony Poje, Rod Glen, Alex Virostko, Gordon Blank, John Carruthers, Charlie Rudolph, Norman Oliver, Mrs. Thea Griffith, W. (Scottie) Sutherland, and Robert Heisterman.

A public referendum will be held before the regional district becomes a reality.

'Write MP On Polls'

Judy Nyquist has asked persons unable to sign her petition to alter the elections act to write their member of Parliament.

Mrs. Nyquist, 1849 Carnarvon, went into action following the recent federal election when she learned persons who couldn't get to a polling booth lost their votes.

She began to circulate a petition asking that the act be changed to provide for a mobile polling booth for hospitals.

She already has 4,500 to 5,000 signatures, pending an accurate count.

"They are still coming slowly. Not because people are not for it, but because we don't have enough hands to get petitions to everyone," she said Friday.

The Laurel Point factory occupies about four acres of property and has 175 employees. There are about 425 employees working for the company in its whole operation, including seven warehouses from here to Fort William, Ont.

George Adams, CIL's general manager for western Canada, said Bapco would continue to operate in its present form with the same staff.

STAYING 'BAPCO'

"We have no intention to operate 'as anything' but Bapco paint," he said. "Just the ownership has changed."

He said the paint business is expanding across the country, but would not say if there were any plans to expand the Victoria facilities.

"I hesitate to say at this time if there will be anything but normal expansion," he said.

SINCE 1839

He pointed out that research facilities of CIL and those of Bapco will at times be able to augment one another.

The name Bapco has been known to Victorians since 1839 when William J. Pendray bought the Victoria branch of an eastern paint company that was located on Store Street.

STEADY GROWTH

Since that time the company has steadily expanded and now has warehouses in Vancouver, Calgary, Edmonton, Regina, Saskatoon, Winnipeg and Fort William. The only factory is here.

The name Pendray goes back a century in Victoria history.

SOAP BUSINESS

In 1875 William J. Pendray opened up a soap manufacturing business in a small building on Humboldt, where the Empress Hotel's north wing now stands.

From this small factory evolved one of western Canada's largest paint manufacturing companies.

Bath Night Interrupted Car Smashes Into House

By BARRY JOHNSON

Kenneth J. Pierson, 32, 2888 Glen Lake Road, is in fair condition after a freak accident in which his car ended up crashing, rear-first, into a house at Gorge and Tillamook.

It rudely interrupted the Friday-night bath of Mrs. Daisy Hughes, 75, of 301 West Gorge.

"It made a terrific noise and I thought the shelves on the bathroom wall were coming down," she said.

SOAKING WET

"What could I do? I was soaking wet."

"I got up, dried and dressed when the neighbor came and told me what had happened."

The car had crashed into the garage which adjoins her bathroom.

In the other part of the duplex, 303 West Gorge, Miss J. M. Tattam was resting in her room and her father, 75-year-old Bill Tattam was reading in the living room.

HOUSE LIFTED

"I heard a great crash and it seemed like the house lifted about a foot off the ground," Miss Tattam said.

"Dad, who is quite deaf, came out and said, 'Did you feel the earthquake?' It lifted my chair."

"I dashed out and saw the car but I couldn't see anyone in it. Then I came in and phoned the police."

Police said the accident will be a hard one to puzzle out.

BOUNCED BACK

The Pierson car struck a telephone pole a few yards south of the house and either bounced back or glanced off, depending on which way it was heading.

Then it apparently travelled sideways, or while turning around, and slid through some heavy brush and crashed backward and on its side through the garage door.

NO FIRE

Saanich fire department was also called to the scene when the car began to smoke, but no fire developed.

The house, at the southwest corner of Gorge and Tillamook, was hit by a car about two years ago. That was before either Mrs. Hughes or the Tattams moved in.

Seven Crashes On District Roads

Seven persons were taken to Victoria hospitals after accidents on rain-slicked Greater Victoria roads Friday.

In fair condition in St. Joseph's Hospital is James Avery, 55, of 714 Discovery, who was in collision with a car driven by Margaret Cooper, 17, of 5275 Parker, at Douglas and Discovery.

Also in fair condition in St. Joseph's Hospital is Kenneth J. Pierson, 2888 Glen Lake, injured in an accident at Gorge and Tillamook.

At Quadra and Kings, eight-year-old pedestrian Laura Cross, 2631 Rose, was in collision with a car driven by Esther Berry of Sidney.

Laura was treated and released from Royal Jubilee Hospital after a collision.

In the same hospital in satisfactory condition is David Aronson, 620 Hoffman, whose car collided with one driven by Charles Velay, 4436 Tyndall, at Millstream and Trans-Canada Highway.

Richard Gravel, 4965 Cordova Bay Road, was treated for head and hand injuries and released from Royal Jubilee Hospital after a chain-reaction collision involving four cars near 3308 Douglas.

Jean Hocking, 72, was injured while a passenger in a car driven by Thomas Hocking, 657 Moss. She was treated and released from St. Joseph's Hospital.

Larry McGilvery, 18, of 2316 Blanshard, was treated and released from St. Joseph's Hospital after a collision.

Wilson Endorses Toone

By A. H. MURPHY

City Hall Reporter

Mayor Wilson threw his support behind Ald. A. W. Toone Friday in the contest for the mayorality of the city which will be decided at the municipal election a week from today.

The action was expected to add spice to a campaign which has, up to this point, been distinguished only by its dullness.

There are two other candidates for the office, Ald. Millard Mooney, senior member of city council, and a newcomer, Rev. J. A. Roberts.

Ald. Mooney is believed to have a number of attestations from businessmen and others in the city and it is possible that he may now use them in his campaign.

Mayor Wilson, who has served two two-year terms of office and who announced months ago that he did not intend to seek a third term, had nothing to add to the prepared statement he issued from his city hall office.

"It seems to me it is implied that being chairman of a council that one is ethically bound to a neutral position regarding personalities," he said.

Esquimalt reeve candidate School principal Alan Newberry, running for the one-year term on Saanich council, said he did not think it right for Saanich reeve Hugh Curtis and Coun. William Campbell to be nominees for candidate George Austin.

"It seems to me it is implied that being chairman of a council that one is ethically bound to a neutral position regarding personalities," he said.

"I think it is a very poor show," he said.

The statement:

"I have been asked by many people whom they should vote for, for mayor of the City of Victoria."

"MOST SUITABLE"

"I have no hesitation in saying that Ald. Alfred Toone is, in my opinion, the most suitable of the three available candidates."

"It has been my great pleasure to work closely with him during the last four years, particularly when he has been chairman of important committees such as Centennial Square, Downtown Paint-up and Improvement and the plans for Bastion Square, and I have been much impressed with his ability."

"He has shown himself to be able, honest and courageous; he speaks well and I am sure will represent the city with dignity and purpose on those many occasions when the mayor is the figurehead for us all."

"QUITE CONTENT"

"I will be quite content to turn over the reins of office to him, confident that the future of our city will be in responsible and capable hands."

Only other public endorsement for Ald. Toone was that of Hugh Stephen who, earlier in the year, was spoken of as a candidate for mayor. In announcing himself as a candidate for city council Mr. Stephen threw his weight toward Ald. Toone for mayor. He would, he said, make a strong, able chief magistrate.

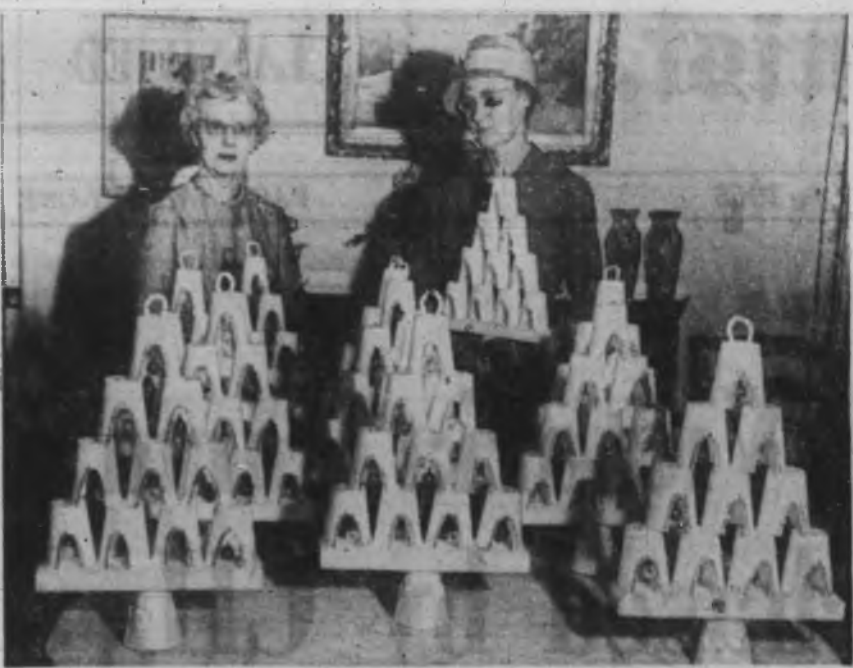

Ald. Toone has stated that if elected to office he will devote his full time to the job and resign his post as secretary-treasurer of the Victoria Labor Council.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a blue-eyed brunette raised on a farm near Alpena, Mich. I came to Detroit, got a job as secretary and fell in love with a prominent executive in the automobile industry. Greg was evasive about where he lived but I never pushed it. Yesterday he telephoned to say he had the flu and couldn't keep our date. I decided to surprise him with a honey and lemon syrup my grandfather used to make. I got his address from the office manager.

Greg was sick all right and when he opened the door and saw me he got a whole lot sicker. The first thing I noticed was a satin housecoat and some ostrich feather bedroom slippers. He said, "I know what you're thinking and you're wrong. That stuff belongs to a sweet kid from Sheboygan who is out of work and needed a place to stay. She'll be out of here tomorrow. I called him a liar and left. When I got home the phone was ringing. He begged me to believe him. Would you?—EGG ON MY FACE

Dear Egg: Would I believe your big-hearted Romeo is playing house mother to a busted kid from Sheboygan? No. I would not. And neither should you.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a dentist who is 86 years old and have been practicing since 1903. Your column on how some dentists handle emergencies was fascinating.

I have had many emergency calls and I've never turned away a patient in pain, even though another patient had to wait.

ache for three weeks and it felt better now than it has in all that time."

I didn't say what I was thinking, but it wasn't easy to keep quiet.

I have read your column regularly and I think you give some really level-headed advice.

—DR. H. C. F.

Dear Doctor: Thank you for a delightful letter. And how blessed is your community to have you as a practicing dentist for 62 years!

Bride's Attendants Wear Gowns of Pink Velvet

In Metropolitan United Church Friday evening, Rev. Albert E. King heard marriage vows of Jill Diane, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Jewsbury, Victoria, and Mr. Robert Walter Powers, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Powers of Vancouver.

Tall baskets of rose and white chrysanthemums decorated the church for the ceremony, at which Mr. Eric Boothroyd was organist.

Mr. Jewsbury gave his daughter in marriage. Her gown was of white peau de soie with full-length train, and her waist-length veil was held by a satin and pearl headpiece.

Mrs. Sandra Grivel was matron of honor for her sister, and Miss Janet Noskes was bridesmaid. Both wore waist-length gowns of shocking pink velvet, with pink veiled bows in their hair and pink satin shoes. They carried colonial bouquets of pale pink carnations with deep pink ribbons.

Miss Lynda Marshall of Vancouver was flower girl for her cousin, and wore a pink taffeta gown with pink and white flowers in her hair. She carried a colonial bouquet of sweetheart roses.

Mr. John Powers was best man for his brother, and a cousin, Mr. Philip Basarab, ushered guests to their places.

Following a reception in the Club Soho the newlyweds left for a wedding trip on the mainland, the bride wearing a turquoise blue suit with matching feather hat and black accessories. Her corsage was of pink roses with freesia.

The new Mr. and Mrs. Powers plan to live at 118 Menzies Street, Victoria.

Arm Chair Tour Of Brazil

Members of Metropolitan United Church Women's Organization were taken on an arm-chair tour of Brazil at their recent meeting. Miss Ulah Jacobson, supervisor of the Greater Victoria Primary Schools, gave an informative commentary as she showed pictures of her recent visit to that country. She told of the illiteracy and poverty of Brazil, and also of the extreme beauty of the future capital, Brasilia.

Centennial Unit members were in charge of the meeting. Miss Donald Lantz led the devotional service.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

Mr. and Mrs. William S. Day left Victoria on Thursday on an extended round the world trip by Pacific Orient line. Their tour will include a visit to Australia, also to England before returning via the Panama next March.

Wed in Metropolitan United

At a ceremony performed by Rev. A. E. King in Metropolitan United Church recently, Miss Yvonne Jones and Mr. Freeman Blehn were united in marriage. The bride chose a dress of French beige lace over pink peau de sole and toning feathered whimsy edged with veiling. Her jewelry was a Normandy Cross pendant and she carried a bouquet of pink roses and freesias. At the reception following Col. Donald McGugan proposed the bridal toast. Mr. and Mrs. Blehn are now living in their home on Beach Drive.

Christmas Eve Wedding

The engagement is announced of Linda Irene Laronde, daughter of Mrs. Reid, 2911 Mathers Avenue, West Vancouver, and the late Neville L. Reid, to Russell Douglas Gokey of Victoria. The marriage will take place on Friday, Dec. 24, at 2 p.m. in The Church By The Lake, Elk Lake, Saanich, with the Rev. H. Pike officiating. After a wedding trip to San Francisco, the young couple will reside in Victoria.

Bridal Shower

Miss Elizabeth Piper and Mrs. E. Corbett entertained at a miscellaneous shower in honor of Miss Fay Brabazon. Corsages were presented to the guest of honor, to her mother, Mrs. G. Brabazon, to the groom-elect's mother, Mrs. J. Piper, and to his grandmother, Mrs. A. Macdougall. A decorated basket held the gifts. Guests were Mrs. R. Nesbitt, Mrs. R. Walker, Mrs. W. Couple to Live In Vancouver Sayde Roberta Riggall became the bride of Mr. David Graham Moss in a double-ring ceremony in Vancouver. Rev. A. Dixon officiated at the recent wedding in Vancouver Heights United Church for the daughter of Mrs. Susan Marriott, Ste. 205 Regency Apartments, Fort Street, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Moss, Vancouver.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her cousin, Mr. William E. Ritchie, chose a winter white wool jacquard suit. Three tiny rosebuds held her short veil in place and she carried a sheaf of red roses. Her only jewelry was a pearl pendant.

Miss Annabelle McKenzie of Vancouver, maid of honor, wore a green velvet suit and velvet floral and net headpiece on tone. She carried a cascade of yellow and bronze chrysanthemums.

Mr. Peter Howes was best man and Mr. Stephan Schaffer ushered guests to their seats. Organist was Mr. T. Townsend.

A three-tiered cake, made by the bride's grandmother, Mrs. S. E. Ritchie, and decorated by her aunt, Mrs. S. Shaw, centred the head table at the reception which followed in the church hall. Mr. Shaw proposed the toast to his niece.

Garden Notes

Save Your Leaves

By M. V. CHESNUT

Every autumn I make an impassioned plea to save all the raked-up fallen leaves rather than make bonfires out of them, and to use this precious material for improving your garden's soil. And every autumn, just as regularly, I get a lot of letters asking all sorts of questions about leaf piles, compost heaps and organic gardening generally. I think it is about time we got things sorted out.

First, I don't think it is quite correct to think of your pile of leaves as fertilizer. Leaves DO contain plant foods, but in very small amounts as compared with a bag of chemical fertilizer. Their value to the soil lies mostly in the improvement of soil texture and moisture-holding capacity that comes from digging in bulky organic matter. I can't think of a single kind of leaf which isn't good for the garden when properly composted, and this includes pine needles, holly, laurel, arbutus and even tea leaves and coffee grounds. But just as the woods of different trees vary in hardness and resistance to rot, so do their leaves. You may remember the English cockney's precept on beer: "All beer is good beer, but some beer is better than others." You could say the same thing about leaves.

Beech, birch and oak leaves are far and away the most useful from the gardener's point of view, chiefly because the stalks and stems rot down at about the same rate as the leaf material proper. Ash and horse chestnut leaves suffer in comparison in that they have very tough stalks and midribs, and these take a long time to decay; by the time they are rotted down, the leaf material is TOO well rotted and not very good for potting mixtures. Like putting the potatoes in a stew too soon—by the time the meat is cooked, the potatoes are mush.

At the other end of the scale, some leaves such as hawthorn decompose too quickly, and their bulk and fibre content is lost too soon. The continued use of the quick-rotting kinds in potting mixtures results in a "soap" soil. All such leaves, the very tough and the very tender, are better used in the general-purpose compost heap rather than in the special heap reserved for manufacturing high-grade leaf mould. Leaves collected from under birch trees are especially valuable, and make an ideal leaf mould for polyanthus and other primroses and for potting in African violets. The half-rotted bits of twigs should never be sifted out of such leaf mould, as they seem to contribute something to the health and well-being of the plants. Primroses in their wild state have a decided preference for clustering around the foot of a birch tree, and I believe there is some kind of affinity between them.

There are roughly three grades of useful material to be obtained from piles of rotting leaves: (1) Coarse stuff formed by undecayed stalk fibres, very small twigs and woody prunings. This is a long-lasting material, especially good for use as a surface mulch around shrubs and herbaceous perennials. (2) Flaky leaf mould, which is a mixture of firm particles ranging from the size of a dime down to almost powder, grand stuff for potting mixtures and especially relished by begonias, African violets and gloxinias. (3) Fine, black mould in which leaf portions can be recognized. This material is useful for potting more "body" and water-holding capacity into sandy or gravelly ground, but it must be used cautiously and sparingly in potting mixtures as it tends to clog the drainage.

Santa Carries Arsenal

If you parents don't play your cards right, you could conceivably be under attack by one of the largest junior armies in history by Dec. 26.

I have just returned from a toy department and frankly I haven't seen such an arsenal since Russia's annual parade for peace.

If I was reduced to a shivering frame of a woman last Christmas when a battery-driven, spider-legged monster with purple antennae and fangs cornered me in the sink, think what a howitzer-armed tank rolling down the hallway will do for me.

I suggest we study these weapons and know our enemy. Be on the lookout for an innocent-looking camera. At the flip of a button, the muzzle springs out, the gripper flaps down and the PTA has lost a loyal member of its sunshine committee.

Beware of small boys carrying large, black attaché cases. There's enough ammunition fired in these not only to start another world war, but to win it!

Know that there is a gun with a periscope whereby the kids can simultaneously watch television in the living room and shoot at you while you're doing the laundry in the utility room.

There are bazookas this year that don't kid around with fake flames, guns that shoot bullets that actually whine over your head and send you flat on your carpet. There are snub-nose pistols and machineguns that could part your hair, and an adaptable rifle that comes with handy telescopic lens and silencer.

There are hand grenades, miniature land mines, zooming planes and ships that sprout wheels and follow you right into the garden.

Thanks to the images of James Bond, the Man From U.N.C.L.E. and secret agent Maxwell Smart, this is also going to be a dirty war of intrigue. There is one gun that is shaped like a sixth finger. It fits over the normal five and, when needed, fires a bullet at a nearby opponent.

I don't know how much farther these ingenious weapons can go, but I expect any day now to have my child march into the house with a violin case (he doesn't play the violin) and order all of us to the garage with our hands over our heads, where he will wish us an early Happy Valentine's Day. (He has already asked Santa Claus for a two-way radio for his gym shoes and a cyanide pellet for his poison ring.)

If you are looking to me for advice on how to prevent this inevitable violence between children and their parents, forget it. Between now and Dec. 26, I am hemstitching a white square of material which I shall place on a long stick and wave when I have to. I think military men call this "unconditional cowardice."

Know Thyself

SYDNEY HARRIS

A college student asks me to explain more fully what I meant in quoting Goethe's remark that we can understand others only by delving into ourselves, and can understand ourselves only by observing others.

Most people assume exactly the opposite—they seem to believe that one can get to know oneself better through introspection. But this method has always failed, and always must. We can study an object to know it, but when we are both the subject and the object, our quest for self-knowledge is doomed from the start.

To try to understand oneself through introspection is a never-ending process: there is always a layer beneath the layer, and a layer beneath that. Plunging into the murky waters of "the essential self" is exploring a bottomless sea; and sometimes there is no way to the surface of life again.

This is not at all what Socrates meant in his famous injunction: "Know thyself." For it is a basic paradox of the personality that we can "know" ourselves only in relation to others; only by expressing ourselves to them, by acting with or for or against them, by feeling and moving in response to them, by giving to them, by accepting them.

Many persons believe, erroneously, that psychiatric help is better; but this is a dangerous half-truth. What such help does is to retrain the feelings of the patient toward himself and others. It releases him from bondage to his unconscious past, and enables him to relate to the present more freely and voluntarily.

It is on this "narrow ridge," to use Ruber's phrase, that religion and psychiatry meet. For this is what the Bible means when it tells us that a person cannot find himself until he loses himself.

To seek for the self, consciously and relentlessly, is always to miss it; it is only when we are able to accept the reality of the other, to make contact with Being outside of self, that we come closest to our own personality.

For the task of the personality is "to become what it is," to realize its potential, as an acorn becomes an oak tree. And this potential can be realized only by opening oneself to the other, by confronting the here and now, as it were, face to face; by learning that we become what we do; and that there is no "essential" self beyond and beneath this complex of emotions and attitudes and acts and responses.

No man has ever "thought" himself into self-knowledge. No man has ever been able to put down on paper his "real self," as even such candid diarists as Gide have painfully found out. The one thing the eye cannot see is the eyeball.

SHEILAH GRAHAM Reports

Hedy Lamarr Was on Relief

HOLLYWOOD (NANA)—Hedy Lamarr broke? I checked with the Motion Picture Relief Fund on the report that Miss Lamarr had appealed for financial assistance to pay her bills. "We are not helping her now," I was told. "That's good news. It means that Hedy, the most beautiful girl ever to find stardom in Hollywood, is able to pay her own way. Actually there is no disgrace in asking the relief fund for help. That's what it is there for, and that's what movie actors and actresses pay for when they are in the chips. Hedy has signed with an agent in the hope of getting some TV commercials. They pay very well. She is also hoping to find a publisher for her memoirs, which should be interesting, starting with her marriage to an Austrian millionaire; that nude flash in Ecstasy when she was 16, to her stardom in Hollywood and her last marriage and divorce—I believe there was one after the mating with the Texas millionaire who afterwards married Gene Tierney.

When Sheila MacKae joined husband Gordon in his act eight or nine years ago, it was more or less to help their marriage survive. It was going through a rocky period at the time. Now, all of a sudden, Sheila and Gordon have decided to work separately, and she has accepted offers to appear in musicals without him. They have also rented their big house to Cary Grant. All this has again caused a strong revival of trouble rumors in their marriage.

I can vouch for it... latest report on the financial status of the two producers who make the James Bond pictures. They are each worth $10,000,000 from the profits of the first three Bonds. I hear that Thunderball will top them all. And with Sean Connery now the number one star of the universe, I must tell you that when I was first introduced to him in London and told that he would star as 007, I asked, "Is he virile enough for the part?"

Orson Welles is planning to do a remake of the last part of his early picture, The Magnificent Ambersons. With the same stars who made it 20 odd years ago. Everyone aged in the second half of the picture. "I'd be all right today," Joseph Cotten was saying. "So would Orson." But Agnes Moorehead actually looks younger and more glamorous now than she did 20 years ago!

Talking of Orson, I remember years ago, when he attended a party at the home of Herbert Yates, then head of Republic Studios. He told Yates he had a great idea for a movie, went into another room and typed a two-page synopsis and handed it to Yates who was so excited by it, he sat down and wrote out a cheque to Orson on the spot for $25,000. At a staff meeting next day, Yates announced that Welles had agreed to do a film for Republic. There was polite applause. Then he read the Welles outline. Then up spoke one of the more literate employees who said, "Mr. Yates, you have just bought Shakespeare's Macbeth." They made the film. It flopped.

Canada's Story

Confederation Caravans In '67 Tour

By JACK FREY
Legislative Reporter

Plans for a unique historical promotion were announced Friday by officials of the Canadian Centennial Commission.

Eight Confederation Caravans, each consisting of eight 7-foot tractor-trailer units—bigger than anything on the road in North America today—will tour the nation in 1967, bringing to the people a walk-in roadside display of Canada's historical background.

One of these caravans will make 100 stops throughout British Columbia between May and November, 1967, travelling 5,217 miles and having its doors open to the public for 167 days.

Sidney on May 20

The caravan will arrive at Powell River on the Mainland, where it will spend a week. It will move to Ganges on Salt Spring Island May 24, be at Sooke River May 25 and at Colwood Plaza May 26.

Between May 28 and June 17, it will travel up-island to Shawanigan Lake, Lacan, Lake Cowichan, Chemainus, Ladysmith, Parksville, Qualicum, the Alberni, Campbell River and Courtenay, before crossing to

'Two Great Shows'

Peter Aykroyd, director of public relations for the centennial commission said, "We in Ottawa see 1967 as a binding-together of Canadians. There is no doubt that British Columbia will have a great show in 1967 and a great centennial celebration in 1967."

Mr. Aykroyd was accompanied by Len Maides, project officer for the train and caravans operation, and Tom Spaulding, design engineer for the project.

NANAIMO—Jackson Ginger, 25, was sentenced to spend the rest of his life in prison, after a jury found him guilty of non-capital murder Friday.

Ginger, a Port Alberni resident, was convicted of the July 20 Alberni Valley strangling of Martha Violet Jones, 16, of Nanaimo Indian Reserve.

Mr. Justice J. G. Ruttan, in sentencing the west coast resident, pointed out the life sentence is mandatory for non-capital murder.

Evidence indicated Ginger and the murdered girl were at a party together in Port Alberni, and left in the early hours of July 20.

They visited the boat where Ginger worked, then left, and later Ginger returned alone.

The girl was found dead, lying in a gully near CPR tracks in the Alberni Valley.

She was naked, some of her clothes apparently had been burned and placed on her head while still burning.

Ginger claimed to police in a statement that the couple walked along the railway tracks and she went one way and he went the other.

He said he spent some time walking around trying to sober up before going to the boat and to bed.

OTHER MAN

Crown Counsel Ted Strongtharm reminded the jury of the evidence of Joseph David Inkster, a mill worker who said he saw Ginger coming out of the bush near the scene of the murder early July 20.

Defence counsel Tom Berger of Vancouver said the girl might have gone off with "almost anybody," and said evidence showed she spent some time in bed with another man on the night of the party.

When Ginger returned to the boat he told his employer, Al Syvan, that the girl had gone away "with some white fellow."

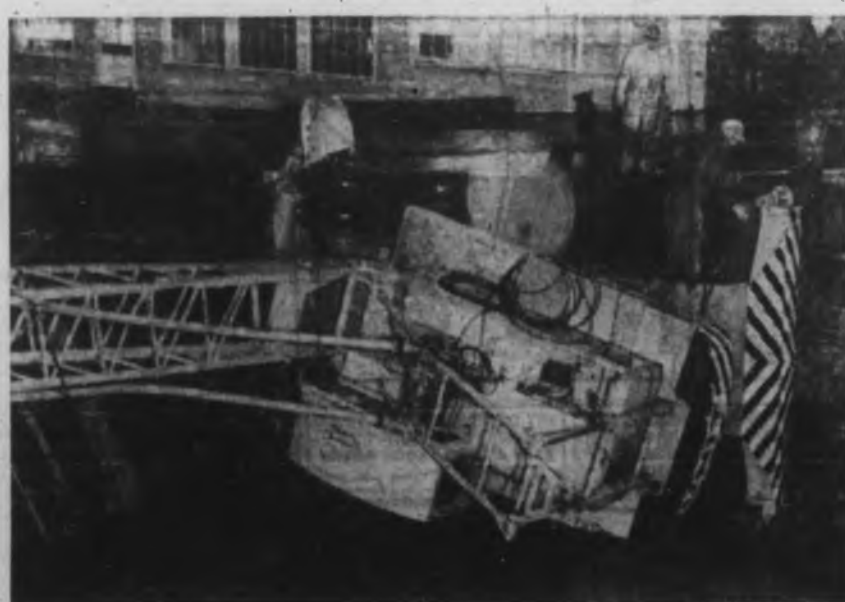

Mr. Syvan said he thought Ginger went to bed "around seven."

But mill worker Inkster claimed he saw "an Indian" (the pointed out Ginger in the courtroom) coming out of the bush at 7:20 a.m.

Mr. Strongtharm put stress on Mr. Inkster's evidence in his address to the jury.

Mr. Berger said Mr. Inkster could have been mistaken, pointed out the accused was shorter than the man Mr. Inkster described.

After the trial Mr. Berger would not comment on possibility of an appeal.

To Prince Rupert

B.C. Lists Fares For North Run

Fare schedules were announced Friday for the B.C. government's new Queen of Prince Rupert which will make overnight trips between northern Vancouver Island and Prince Rupert starting in mid-May.

A couple making the trip by car and occupying the cheapest lower deck stateroom for two will have to pay $101 one-way and $190 for a round-trip.

$240 RETURN

Cheapest accommodation for a man, wife and two children between the ages of five and 11 years travelling with car will be $138 one-way and $240 return.

Cost of meals are not included in the fare. Most people will have three meals on each cruise.

Adult fare for the 22-hour journey on B.C.'s first open sea ferry has been set at $30 one-way and $54 return.

LOWER FARES

Children from five through 11 years of age, blind persons and members of the clergy will be entitled to half-fare.

Berths will be $11.50 each on the bridge deck, which has two berth de luxe staterooms with wash basin, shower and toilet.

Extend Training Say B.C. Growers

A better system of agricultural training is being sought by B.C. growers.

Delegates attending the annual convention of the Horticultural Trades Association of B.C. at the Empress Hotel agreed Friday to ask for government action to establish an agricultural college similar to those in eastern Canada.

They are dissatisfied with the program being offered by the University of British Columbia because it does not give enough general and practical courses.

Growers advocate a college featuring the practical side of agriculture, landscaping and nursery operation.

The association decided to join forces with the B.C. Federation of Agriculture in seeking government action.

Death Cheated Twice

For the second time in less than 12 months crane operator Larry Joe, 15 Cooper, has survived a toppling crane accident at Yarrow, Ltd.

Friday a tire-mounted 25-ton crane operated by Mr. Joe went out of control apparently through loss of brakes, coasted 100 feet down an incline, and dropped onto the marine railway. Mr. Joe jumped clear before the crane toppled.

In the first instance Jan. 11 he rode down an 80,000 heavy lift crane 90-feet and escaped with face cuts.

Yarrow, Ltd. general manager John Wallace said the crane was carrying no load at the time it went out of control. He believed the cause of the accident was faulty brakes.

"We were lucky no one got in the way," he said.

Tips You Off

The rum and sugar islands of the Caribbean are getting the big action this winter—probably because they're spending millions on those four-color calypso ads. (You can almost smell the Planter's punch on the table.) Air travel and cruise ships are quite reasonable. But—

Resort costs are a pirate's ransom. Folders quote $75 and $85 a day for two — and only two meals. The places are elegant — I imagine you can draw champagne from the tap. But they charge.

However, you can shop for something reasonable. Not easy. The little guest houses can't afford to advertise in a big way. But try these.

Puerto Rico: Send for a little magazine called Que Pasa. Lists small hotels there and in some nearby islands. Better send a dollar. Tell them what you are looking for.

Virgin Islands: Something like Que Pasa is Here's How. Box 1795, St. Thomas, Virgin Islands. Send a dollar on this too. Address Jeanne Harman and tell her what price range you're looking for.

Bahamas: Write Bahamas Development Board, Nassau, Bahamas. They'll send a free price listing with descriptions. Jamaica, Trinidad, Martinique — just a letter to the Tourist Board in each island will get some listings.

A MOLSON'S QUALITY PRODUCT

"Old Style" BEER

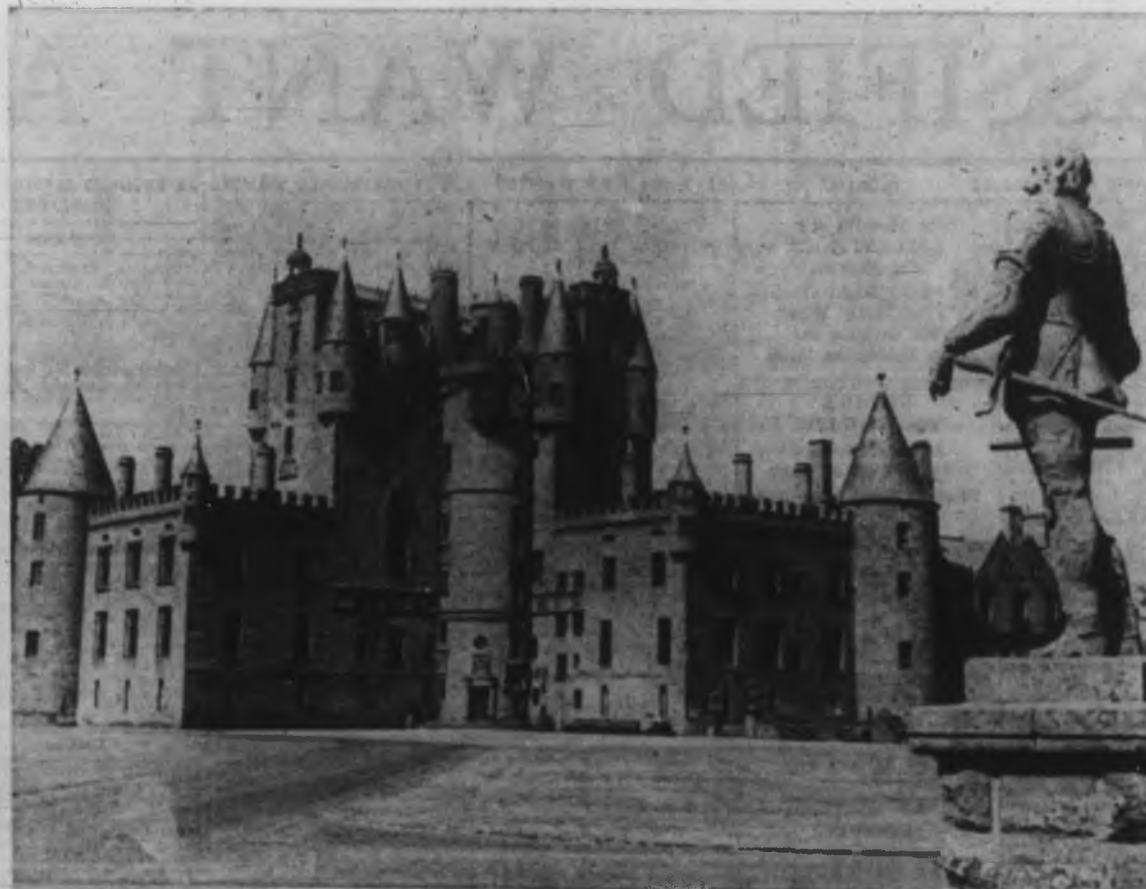

MOLSON'S CAPILANO BREWERY LTD., VANCOUVER, CANADA

No partridge. No pear tree.
No room.
Not with 3 crows a rabbit
a dog two union labels six Indians a biplane a train
and twenty-nine trees!

No one has ever tried to "modernize" the Old Style label or the distinctive flavor of the beer inside.
Call it old fashioned if you like. Old Style is still made by men who take plenty of time to brew and age our beer in the traditional way.

MASTER BREWED BY MOLSON'S

Ageless Glamis Castle Was Setting for Shakespeare's Macbeth.

Name Makes Money

HOLYHEAD, Anglesey, North Wales (Reuters) — Llan-fairpwllwgwyllwg, a railway station near here with the longest name in Britain, has earned British Railways more than £1,450 ($13,350) in the last three years.
Collectors come from all over the world to buy six-inch long souvenir tickets with the name of the station printed on them. The tickets cost three pence.
More than 350,000 have been purchased since they were introduced three years ago.

Queen Mother's Birthplace

Glamis Brings History to Life

DUNDEE, Scotland (CNS) — Marie de Lorraine, when they held court at Glamis Castle, are still preserved.
During the Scottish Highland uprising against the English in 1715, the young fourth Earl of Strathmore entertained the pretender to the Scottish throne here. His sword, coat, and watch can still be seen in the castle.

Fireplaces, tapestries and furnishings all set the scene to create the historical atmosphere of one of Scotland's finest old castles.
The visitors also can walk in the castle's extensive grounds and gardens.
Four miles away is the little town of Kirriemuir, where Sir James Barrie, the author of Peter Pan and other plays, was born. His birthplace there is preserved as a theatrical museum.

Firemen Jailed For Setting Fires

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Two volunteer firemen who, investigators said, admitted setting two house fires because they liked to light them, have pleaded guilty to arson charges. Jimmy Franklin Owens, 23, and Willie L. Berryhill, 22, were sentenced to three-year prison terms.

Germans Rebound

HAMBURG (Reuters) — About 300 West Germans have founded a private company, German-Atlantic Shipping Association, to build here West Germany's first post-war luxury liner, a 20,000-ton, 600-passenger ship.

Gallery Picture Loan

Duncan De Kerganmeaux of Ottawa and Thelma Manary of Edmonton are among the new artists to be presented at the picture loan on the next rental evening, Dec. 6, at the Art Gallery, 1040 Moss Street.
Over two hundred paintings will be available to members of the Art Gallery, and will include works by Maxwell Bates, Adrian Dingle, Herbert Siebner, Peter Haworth, John Osborne, and Edith Hemmroff-Schleicher.

Paintings Found Five Arrested

ROME (AP) — Italian police report the recovery of 22 paintings worth more than $160,000, stolen from a Rome collector three months ago. All the paintings were by Giorgio Morandi, a leading modern Italian artist. Police took into custody four youths and a 23-year-old girl.

Officials In Panic

Lovely Venice In Danger Of 'Drowning'

VENICE (AP) — City officials of Venice are in something of a panic. They fear this unique and magnificent Italian city might collapse into the very canals that have made it a prime tourist attraction of the world.

Many things are blamed — salt-water corrosion, the charming backwash kicked up by modern motorboats, dredging of canals to deepen them for more traffic, and the infirmities of age.

The panic is both old and new. Motorboats in the canals and steamships in the lagoon are a new cause for fear. But lovers of Venice have feared that the might sink into the sea almost from the time she rose from it 15 centuries ago.

FEARS REASONABLE
The fears are reasonable enough. As a physical phenomenon the very existence of Venice is almost too much to believe.

Who could have thought that a city could rise on 100 little sandy islands so soggy that thousands of wooden stakes must be sunk into the ground to support the foundations of every building?

Venice has been a chance business from the start. Her history is packed with chronicles of decay and collapse, of churches suddenly crashing into ruins, of towers tilting out of line until, with a roar of yielding masonry, they crumbled out of existence.

BUILDINGS LEAN
Even at the best of times Venice has been a jumbled city of historical bric-a-brac, an eccentric old community of twisting lanes, uneven walls, swaying staircases, crooked chimneys, bulging buildings and sagging stairs.

Almost nothing in Venice seems straight. Many of the ancient palaces along the Grand Canal are so out of line it seems a miracle that they stand.

But the city fathers hope to keep everything around a little longer. They work at their task with the experience derived from intimacy with the problem and the tools of modern technology.

If the motorboat backwash weakens foundations, Venetian engineers know how to strengthen them — by building modern water-tight caissons around the house and squirting concrete into the foundations, the way a dentist fills a tooth.

Many a tattering tower is shored up with modern steel beams hidden from sight by artfully restored brickwork. Many a church and private home is buttressed by steel bands. As a city of art, restoration is something Venice knows well.

Though seldom seen by the tourist, there is modern steel work constantly at work in the major canals, pushing through the silt to check on the city's substructures and to keep them in repair.

TRICKY, COSTLY
All this is tricky and expensive, but manageable. The mild sense of panic is always there, but officials and citizenry alike are sure that the proud old city will be standing for many centuries to come.

How dry it will be is another problem, for Venice is sinking into the sea. No one really knows for sure, but it is said the water level is rising about one-fifth of an inch a year.

Specialists say the causes are both natural and human. During the centuries the weight of the city has been causing a gradual compression of the subsoil. Italy is a land of earthquakes and the subterranean disturbances have accelerated the sinking of the soggy earth beneath Venice.

TIDES STRONGER
To accommodate modern shipping, deep-water entrances have been dredged in the lagoon and, together with the constant deepening of canals in the city, the rush of tides over the years has become ever stronger.

But the prospect of a Venice disappearing into the sea seems so remote that, for the moment at least, the city government has nothing specific in mind to prevent it.

Southern California

10 unusual winter scenes

This Was the West That Was. The Old West is not yet dead. Still intact are many sites where Hollywood westerns are filmed. Visit a ghost town, too. You can even watch a stagecoach robbery enacted!

Tarzan of the Apes. In the shadow of overhanging palms, the lagoon at Los Angeles County Arboretum retains the enchantment of Tarzan's jungle, often filmed here.

A 200-inch eye. Atop a mountain stands the world's largest telescope, weighing 140 tons, housed in a shining dome 12 stories high.

Camel racing. A festival celebrating the harvest of 40 million pounds of dates is highlighted by camel and ostrich races in our 'Arabia of America'.

Beetle races. Dune buggies are beetle-like vehicles. With their bulging tires perfect for crossing giant sand dunes, they vie in desert drag races.

'Where's Your Wife?'

Young Questions Often Tough For Santa Claus

What do you do when you're Santa Claus and a four-year-old asks you where your wife is?

"You evade the issue as best you can," says David Collins, also known as Santa Claus while at work in a Victoria department store.

It's easier to answer that you parked your reindeer on the roof and "you can't go and see them because it's still early in the Christmas season and they are still a little nervous with people around."

"REAL TEETH?"

Evade again.

"I suppose I have been guilty of fraud in the two weeks I was a store Santa," Mr. Collins says. "But to beg a child get over his initial fear and gaze adoringly at the real Santa makes it worthwhile."

"You have to join the children in their make-believe without destroying their image of a well-loved figure," he says.

BIG ARSENAL

The list of requests by boys would stock a powerful arsenal — 007 weapons, the deadly Secret Sam spy kit, rifles and hand guns by the score and Big Bruiser which turned out to be just a dump truck.

Girls want the dolls with the fashion wardrobes and ovens that really cook.

One that will be a rough one to fill: a brand new set of teeth for a six-year-old, no cavities.

War Crimes Punished By Germany

"Germany has done as much to punish Nazi war crimes as all four Allied powers put together," a visiting Arizona State University professor said Friday.

Dr. Donald Dalglish, a political scientist, spoke about the radical right in Germany to more than 20 professors and upper-years political science students at the University of Victoria.

His address was the first in a series of political science lectures for faculty and students to be given at the university by visiting specialists.

Dr. Dalglish discounted the political significance of neo-Nazi groups.

Raise $2,000

The new Sacred Heart Church Hall was transformed into a gay Fall Fair by the clever use of bright autumn flowers, artificial shrubbery, and colorful banners for the recent bazaar. Greeting guests were Rev. J. Planeta assisted by CWI president, Mrs. L. Webb.

From the opening until the closing hour the many stalls did a brisk business which resulted in over $2,000.

A lightship was stationed for the first time at the mouth of the Fraser River in January, 1865 and a number of iron buoys were brought from England to serve as additional navigational aids.

Detective Rescues Woman — All the Way Into River

OTTAWA (CP) — It was a police action with some of those Keystone Cops silent movie antics.

Det. Guy Lachaine, driving an unmarked patrol car in suburban Eastview early Friday, spotted a motorist cruising slowly beside a woman walking on the sidewalk.

Det. Lachaine to the rescue.

The car speeds off. Det. Lachaine gives chase but loses it. He returns to the place where the woman was walking to get information.

The woman, by this time apparently leery of all cars, starts to run.

Det. Lachaine calls for a marked patrol car to ally the woman's fears.

Up comes Const. Guy Seguin in the marked car.

Const. Seguin takes up the chase on foot.

The woman runs onto a bridge and leaps into the Rideau River. So does Const. Seguin.

Woman puts up terrific struggle but is rescued by Const. Seguin. Police on shore help calm her fears and take her to hospital to be treated for shock.

Astronauts Lovell and Borman

Outlook Good for Historic Lift-Off Today

Chances for Space Rendezvous 50-50

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP)—Gemini 7 astronauts Frank Borman and James A. Lovell Jr. relaxed Friday on the eve of one of man's greatest space adventures—a two-week endurance flight during which two manned vehicles may fly within inches while orbiting at 17,500 miles an hour.

Success of the marathon mission and the planned rendezvous with Gemini 6, which will be launched later, would topple all man-in-space records and considerably enhance U.S. confidence that it can land astronauts on the moon in this decade.

Most space agency officials feel there is slightly better than a 50-50 chance that the Gemini 7 and 6 rendezvous can be accomplished in mid-December.

The smoothest pre-launch preparations in the history of the U.S. man-in-space program coasted today without a hitch toward today's scheduled 2:30 p.m. EST launching of Gemini 7.

The weather outlook, which had caused concern Thursday, brightened. The forecast was for cloudy but satisfactory launching conditions at Cape Kennedy this afternoon.

All systems in the four-ton spacecraft and the Titan II rocket received thorough checks Friday and were pronounced in excellent shape. Fuel was loaded in the power-producing fuel cells.

If Britain Fails to Fill Gap

Zambia's Chief Sees Red-Led Race War

LUSAKA (AP)—Zambia's President Kenneth Kaunda suggested Friday that he might call for Soviet troops if Britain refuses to invade neighboring white-ruled Rhodesia. The British flew war planes into Zambia during the day for defence but Kaunda said that is not enough.

"If the United Kingdom refused to send ground troops," he said, "we could ask the United States."

He contended, however, that the U.S. is likely to follow Britain's lead, and added: "What is there left for us to do but to go to the Soviet government?" He said this is "just a line of thought."

If the Soviet Union is drawn into the campaign, he added, "this would not only be a racial war, but an ideological one."

The president talked at a press conference as RAF fighter and transport planes swarmed into the country to defend the Kariba Dam, on the Zambezi River border between Zambia and Rhodesia, which supplies power to the Zambian copper complex.

In Addis Ababa, Ethiopia, delegates from 32 African states voted to break diplomatic relations with Britain Dec. 15 unless Prime Minister Wilson's government crushes the Rhodesian white-supremacy rebellion by that date.

The delegates to the Organization of African Unity also voted to bar planes to Rhodesia from flying over their territory, cut off all communications with the breakaway British colony and to block all Rhodesian bank accounts. It declared all Rhodesian travel documents void.

The British have offered to send troops to protect the installation, but negotiations are bogged down over Zambia and possibly other countries.

This issue is considered especially vital since there is the possibility that troops from African countries might take part in any future operations here.

U.K. Seizes Reserve Bank

LONDON (UPI)—Britain Friday took over the Reserve Bank of Rhodesia and with it control of an estimated $56,000,000 in a dramatic new bid to crush the Rhodesian rebellion.

The action was regarded in financial quarters here as the toughest move yet made in the plan to bring the rebel government of Prime Minister Ian Smith to its knees.

It gives Britain immediate access to about $28,000,000 of Rhodesia's money and eventual control—when the bank's newly-appointed directors find out where it is—of the remaining amount.

Thompson Fortifies Liberals

OTTAWA (UPI)—Social Credit leader Robert Thompson Friday virtually guaranteed the minority Liberal government the votes it will need to weather any non-confidence motions in the new parliamentary session beginning Jan. 18.

"We won't allow the government to be blackmailed, and we won't allow Conservative leader John Diefenbaker to throw the country into another election," Thompson said in an interview.

The Social Credit leader said his party's five votes "can be a stabilizing force" in parliament. The Liberals are only two seats short of a majority.

In a free-wheeling interview, the MP from Red Deer, Alta., blasted Prime Minister Lester Pearson for not reorganizing his cabinet immediately after the election.

Suicide In Berlin

Deputy Premier Erich Apel of East Germany committed suicide Friday "after a sudden nervous collapse," the official East German news agency said. Aged 48, he had been unwell for some time.

Saigon: 11 Dead, 159 Hurt

MOBILE 'BOMB' ROCKS BILLET

SAIGON (AP)—Viet Cong terrorists, breaking a pre-Christmas lull, attacked and blew up a U.S. enlisted men's billet with machine guns, grenades and an explosive-laden market truck before dawn today in downtown Saigon.

Estimates of Vietnamese casualties ranged up to 100, including eight dead.

A U.S. military spokesman said two Americans were killed and 67 wounded. A New Zealand artilleryman was killed and four of his mates wounded.

A series of bomb scares swept over the city after the big blast at the Metropole Hotel billet.

A Claymore mine was planted in the street with a time-fuse set to go off when a crowd gathered. It failed to go off.

A bomb believed to have been a hand grenade exploded near the top floor of a three-story officers' dormitory about two blocks from the Metropole. No one was injured there.

The MP was wounded as he emptied his revolver and shot gun at the attackers.

Windows in the navy hospital were broken by the explosion and five patients were slightly injured by flying glass. The navy hospital adjoins the billet.

Also damaged was the navy dispensary in the billet building, and one source said it might be five or six weeks before it and its delicate X-ray and other equipment would be fully operating again.

Nearly all windows in the billet and vicinity were shattered. Most of the U.S. and New Zealand casualties were hit by flying glass.

MINIMUM HIT

A spokesman said, "fortunately, all of the boys were in their beds at the time, and not moving around. That meant they got a minimum of hits."

Touring U.S. Senate Majority Leader, Mike Mansfield, Democrat of Montana, and U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge visited the scene soon after dawn.

Lodge said later: "The bombing of the dispensary building and enlisted men's quarters was a diabolic act. It was also murder. In addition, it was sheer wanton terrorism, as was the killing and wounding of Vietnamese men, women and children who lived and worked nearby."

With little demurring, the diplomats said, the Soviet Union has paid up.

'Dangerous Momentum' In Viet War

UNITED NATIONS (UPI)—Secretary-General U Thant warned the United Nations Friday the war in Viet Nam appeared to be gathering "dangerous momentum."

Thant told the 117-nation General Assembly after it had approved overwhelmingly a couple of resolutions on disarmament, nothing would improve the prospects for disarmament more than an end to the Vietnamese war.

Russians Pay China In U.S. Coin

UNITED NATIONS (UPI)—China is forcing the Soviet Union to pay in American dollars and gold for transit duties and customs on Russian supplies sent to North Viet Nam, according to diplomatic sources.

The non-western diplomats said the Soviet Union has submitted to the charges even on medical supplies sent across China to Ho Chi Minh's regime in Hanoi.

With little demurring, the diplomats said, the Soviet Union has paid up.

Russia Tries Again

New Shot at Moon

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet Union have been launched by power-belt around the earth before the Union launched Friday its full multistage rockets. The first capsule is fired toward the moon.

The launch was a major stride ahead of the United States in the race to put a man there.

If all goes well, the first soft lunar landing in history should take place around midnight Moscow time (1 p.m. PST) Monday night, when American astronauts are scheduled to be orbiting the earth in the Gemini 7 capsule.

HEAVIER

The unmanned Soviet space station Luna VIII, loaded with scientific equipment, weighed slightly more than earlier Soviet moon shots this year, 3,421.5 pounds.

The difference in weight could be due to refinements in the soft-landing system following three unsuccessful tests earlier this year. Luna V and Luna VI crashed on the moon. Luna VII missed the moon by 100,000 miles.

An official announcement said the main purpose of Luna VIII is "further refinement of the elements of a soft lunar landing and scientific studies."

ALL NORMAL

The announcement said all systems were functioning normally when the Lunik was last reported 28,378 miles from earth over Sinkiang province in western China.

Patient's Death: Murder

Coroner's Jury Rules in Arsenic Case

VANCOUVER (CP)—A coroner's jury Friday said the July 11 death of Mrs. Esther Castellani was due to arsenic poisoning and classified it as homicide by person or persons unknown.

Mrs. Castellani died after being ill for seven weeks in hospital and the jury said: "We think the numerous doctors would have benefited by group consultation in order to arrive at a more definite diagnosis at an earlier date."

The jury recommended that pesticides and herbicides containing poisons such as arsenic be sold only on the signature of the buyer in a register kept by the vendor.

Coroner Glen McDonald, at the close of a 24-day inquest which heard evidence given and deposed that Mrs. Castellani's husband was planning to marry another woman, told the jury of three men and three women that they had to decide whether it was a case of suicide, accidental death or homicide. But if they found the latter he suggested that they could not find any particular person responsible.

The coroner repeated previous warnings to the jury that hearsay evidence from various witnesses must be considered as such and not necessarily as the truth.

Colonist 500 Fund

Brownie Pack Strives For Needy Families

Children are learning their community is not a homogeneous blend of easy living by helping with The Colonist 500 Fund.

"Every year, groups of youngsters find out about the fund, ask questions and do something about it."

The fund sends a Christmas gift of money to the 500 neediest families in Greater Victoria. This is the ninth year of its operation. Last year the 500 received cheques for $25 each.

The latest groups of children to help this year were the 11th Victoria Brownie Pack of Gordon Head and the Grade

5, division 8, class of Richmond Elementary School. The Brownies held a sale of candy they made themselves, toys and comics they donated. They raised $15.75 for the fund.

The Grade fivers gathered more than 1,000 bottles and sold them for a substantial $30.07.

Their reward, and that of hundreds of other generous Victorians, will be letters like these:

An Indian chief writes: "Thank you for the financial assistance given to various families of our band. It has made Christmas a little brighter for them."

A pensioner: "I know that no one will go hungry at Christmas when there are so many wonderful and thoughtful people in this fair city."

That's how much $25 means to some of our neighbors at Christmas. Maybe we'll be able to give them more this year.

Storm Whips Island

Winds and rain whipped Vancouver Island from side to side and north to south Friday. Trees were blown over near Campbell River and heavy rain turned streams into small rivers of fast-moving water.

In Port Alberni winds gusting to 50 mph and higher brought boat-owners from their homes to waterside to try to secure craft in Alberni Canal.

Boat anchorages and marinas were crowded after warnings from RCMP.

The road to Bamfield between Camp B and Sault River was washed out. In Comox trees were uprooted and for the second day there was a power blackout because of broken lines.

RCMP Station Comox recorded winds gusting up to 65 mph.

Island forecast: Gales and rain.

Sports Arena Opposed

Too Many Too Far From Fuller Lake

By KLAUS MUENTER
NORTH COWICHAN — Coun. George Whittaker believes if the proposed arena at Fuller's Lake site, a 40-acre block owned by the municipality.

He thinks a smaller recreation centre should be located in Chemainus. He is opposed to the Fuller's Lake site, a 40-acre block owned by the municipality.

The arena, costing $300,000, will go to the voters early next year, and if approved would be the municipal centennial project.

Coun. Whittaker, who is not up for re-election this year, said a Chemainus location for the arena would be much more convenient for more people than Fuller's Lake. "I regret the Fuller's Lake project has become an election issue," said Coun. Whittaker.

LATER VOTE
He said the people will make their decision in a vote after the municipal election.

Coun. Whittaker said a more "modest" centre should be built in Chemainus, and the rest of the money should be saved for another centre in the southern portion of the Cowichan Valley.

He commented: "It is my honest opinion that we will never have a sports centre down here (southern area of the municipality) if the arena is built at Fuller's Lake."

TOO REMOTE
He pointed out some residents in the municipality live as far as 17 miles from the Fuller's Lake site.

Coun. Whittaker listed his objections to the proposed site. It is too far from the populated area; remote from fire and police protection.

All Candidates Support Bus Subsidies

PORT ALBERNI — Bus service is essential to the Twin Cities, according to aldermanic candidates here.

The financially troubled Tye service, which needs more money and has recently cut many night runs, is no issue in the campaign because of the solid support of candidates.

George Cole, speaking on behalf of candidates sponsored by the Alberni and District Labor Council gave backing to buses.

The other candidates sponsored by the labor council are high school teacher Dave Smith and pulp mill employee Walter Echn.

Mr. Cole said "We ask all voters in Alberni and Port Alberni to vote in favor of the Tye Bus Company franchise subsidy bylaw."

"We have a responsibility to those citizens requiring bus service and should not shed this responsibility."

"Generally speaking, we are opposed to subsidizing any private company, but on the other hand, we realize there is a need for the continuance of this service until such time as a more permanent solution can be found."

Asked what form the permanent solution might take, Mr. Cole indicated a city-owned bus system might eventually be the answer, but said much study and expert advice should go into the matter before any decision is made.

George McKnight, another candidate, also feels the bus service must continue, but suggests alternative operation.

HYDRO TRANSIT
Said Mr. McKnight "B.C. Hydro and Power Authority serves this community with power, and makes a profit out of it, it is the proper agency to operate the municipal transit system as it does in Vancouver and Victoria."

Candidate Howard MacLean has stated he believes the bus service must not be allowed to disappear, and he has said the subsidy, which may not be more than $12,000 is only a fraction of other costs which the city bears.

Expansion Swamps B.C. Tel

COURTENAY — Expenditures covered in the new budget of B.C. Telephone will give $114,000 of additional service to the Comox Valley.

The figures were released by Carl Swabey, district manager, Campbell River.

The money will be used to improve local service. Information and long distance answering should also be better after the first of the year, the district manager said.

Orders for equipment are planned on projection of one and a half years ahead and a basis of five per cent growth, or about 300 new telephone installations a year. So far this year 464 new connections have been made Mr. Swabey said.

The result of the growth is the stepping up of forecasts to 500 connections in the next year and 400 a year in future.

Nanoose Chief's Invitation

All-Tribe Meeting For Medical Study

NANAIMO — Chief Wilson Bob of Nanoose has called a Sunday meeting of the South Vancouver Island Allied Tribes on the Indian Reserve in the school hall.

This is the first time this type of meeting has taken place in this area.

Dr. C. S. Gamble, head of the Nanaimo Indian Hospital, will outline the benefits of the new B.C. government medical services scheme.

Mrs. Ellen White, wife of Nanaimo Chief Doug White, urged all chiefs, councillors and interested parents to attend, so that plans for visits to Victoria university by Indian children can be finalized.

She Died Near Her Brother Vain Rescue Attempt Cost Sharon's Life

By MARY TAYLOR
PORT ALBERNI — Little Sharon Sport, who died in a house fire Thursday, gave her life in a vain attempt to save her three-year-old brother.

Sharon, 7, got out of the house with her two brothers, Ralph and Irwin, and their aunt, Mrs. Katie Sam of Bamfield, who was staying with them.

Mrs. Sam awoke shortly after 2:30 a.m. Thursday and found the house aflame. She roused the two older boys, and went outside with them. She met Sharon in the hall and pushed her outside too. Then she returned to seek her young nephew Darwin, 3. But for some reason the child was not sleeping in his usual bedroom.

Mrs. Sam found herself trapped in the flaming room, and escaped by breaking the window, suffering cuts in her frantic effort to escape.

To her horror, she found that Sharon was no longer outside with the two little boys, when the aunt made her way out for the second time.

The little girl had returned to the blazing frame home in a vain attempt to save her little brother. Darwin was found dead in bed, and Sharon on the floor facing the door.

Mrs. Sam is the sister of Mrs. Susan Sport, the children's mother, and was staying with the youngsters while their mother was out, and their father at his job in Franklin River.

Convicted in Alberni Valley Strangling

Ginger Found Guilty On Non-Capital Count

Totem a Fresh Air Fiend

Wooden passenger wasn't built for small-car comfort, but open sun-roof provides ample space. Seven-foot totem was carved by Simon Charlie and started its long journey to Toronto resident Frank Fisher, manager of Odeon Theatres of Canada. Local Odeon manager Archie Owen borrowed the sun-roofed car to take the totem from Mr. Charlie's workshop to the railroad station. — (Klaus Muentner)

NANAIMO — Jackson Ginger, 25, was sentenced to spend the rest of his life in prison, after a jury found him guilty of non-capital murder Friday.

Ginger, a Port Alberni resident, was convicted of the July 20 Alberni Valley strangling of Martha Violet Jones, 16, of Nanaimo Indian Reserve.

Mr. Justice J. G. Rutan, in sentencing the west coast resident, pointed out the life sentence is mandatory for non-capital murder.

FOUND BODY
Evidence indicated Ginger and the murdered girl were at a party together in Port Alberni, and left in the early hours of July 20.

They visited the boat where Ginger worked, then left, and later Ginger returned alone. The girl was found dead, lying in a gully near CPR tracks in the Alberni Valley.

She was naked, some of her clothes apparently had been burned and placed on her head while still burning.

Ginger claimed to police in a statement that the couple walked along the railway tracks and she went one way and he went the other.

He said he spent some time walking around trying to sober up before going to the boat and to bed.

OTHER MAN
Crown Counsel Ted Strongtharm reminded the jury of the evidence of Joseph David Inkster, a mill worker who said he saw Ginger coming out of the bush near the scene of the murder early July 20.

Defence counsel Tom Berger of Vancouver said the girl might have gone off with "almost anybody," and said evidence showed she spent some time in bed with another man on the night of the party.

When Ginger returned to the house he told his employer, Alf Syon, that the girl had gone away "with some white fellow."

Mr. Syon said he thought Ginger went to bed "around seven."

But mill worker Inkster claimed he saw "an Indian" (he pointed out Ginger in the courtroom) coming out of the bush at 7:20 a.m.

MAN SHORTER
Mr. Strongtharm put stress on Mr. Inkster's evidence in his address to the jury.

Mr. Berger said Mr. Inkster could have been mistaken, pointed out the accused was shorter than the man Mr. Inkster described.

After the trial Mr. Berger would not comment on possibility of an appeal.

Crash Kills Ladner Man
CAMPBELL RIVER — Gary McKee, 25, Ladner, was killed Thursday night when his gravel truck missed a bridge and dropped into a stream near Butte Lake.

He was driving the truck for J. J. Cartage and Construction. Because the area is remote, police did not go to the scene until Friday. They had trouble recovering the body, because heavy rain had swollen the stream.

Problems Galore For Region

NANAIMO — City council is interested in unloading nine different problems onto a proposed regional district.

Ald. Jack Parker listed: Planning, recreation, fire protection, garbage collection and disposal, operation of the airport, public transportation, police protection, pound operation, and ambulance service.

Ald. Parker is a member of the subcommittee working on formation of a regional district from the following areas.

REFERENDUM
Beside Ald. Parker, members of the committee are Tony Poje, Rod Giles, Alex Virostko, Gordon Blank, John Carruthers, Charlie Rudolph, Norman Oliver, Mrs. Thelma Griffith, W. (Scottie) Sutherland, and Hobart Heisterman.

A public referendum will be held before the regional district becomes a reality.

Hospital Given Go-Ahead

NANAIMO — Hospital board has received approval in principle from Health Minister Martin for an architect to prepare plans for three additions to the Nanaimo regional hospital.

The additions will include an 85-bed continuing care unit, a 24-bed rehabilitation unit, and a 24-bed psychiatric unit.

It is not expected final authorization from the minister will be given in time for tenders to be called before September 1966.

As well as the plans already outlined a central core will be designed to include an enlarged physiotherapy department, occupational therapy area, chapel, and other special treatment areas.

Night Prowler Flees Girl's Bedroom

By PETER TAYLOR

NANAIMO — In the privacy of her bedroom in black of night, a 19-year-old girl looked into a mirror and saw a stranger's reflection.

Nancy Cote felt a draft and sat up in bed. She caught a glimpse of the intruder in a mirror. Startled by her sudden movement, he fled.

The man entered the home of Mr. and Mrs. Victor Cote, 2740 Fairbanks, Departure Bay, through an unlocked bathroom door.

Mrs. Cote the girl's mother, said there is a large cardboard box of clothes in the hallway which the intruder pushed against the parents' bedroom door. He then entered Nancy Cote's bedroom.

He left the same way he came in.

The intruder must have been carrying a flashlight because Nancy's bedroom is pitch dark at night yet she caught a fleeting glimpse of him in her dresser mirror. Nothing was taken from the home.

Night prowler entered Cote's home here

Credit Union Opens

PORT ALBERNI — Mayor Fred Bishop of Alberni and Mayor Les Hammer of Port Alberni have signed a joint declaration proclaiming today as Credit Union Day in the Alberni Valley.

The proclamation reads:

"Alberni District Credit Union is now in its 25th year of service. Credit Unions provide an invaluable means whereby people may pool their savings and assist themselves to fill their needs for credit at a low cost."

"The Credit Union not only promotes the economic security of the members, but also strengthens democracy, encourages individual responsibility and the practice of true brotherhood and thus benefits our entire community."

MANY MEMBERS

"Alberni District now has a Credit Union with several branches whose combined membership totals 9,500 representing a significant portion of the citizens of the west coast of Vancouver Island."

"We do hereby proclaim Saturday, Dec. 4, 1963, as Credit Union Day, and urge our people to give fitting recognition at this time to the many benefits brought to them through Credit Unions."

SUCCESS WISE

"We extend to the leaders and members of the Credit Union our greetings, congratulations and sincere good wishes for continued success in serving their fellow men."

The proclamation was issued in honor of the new $240,000 building to be opened today at 2 p.m. at Fourth and Angus Streets in Port Alberni.

Gord-Ann Ranch

Hosts Win Fur Awards

PORT ALBERNI — Results of judging at the chinichilla breeders field day at the Gord-Ann Ranch in the Alberni Valley recently saw local breeders take a good share of the awards among 57 entries.

Show championship went to W. E. Johnson of Port Alberni and reserve champion to Gordon Redlack of Port Alberni.

FOUR PHASES

Of the four color phases, prizes for medium light animals went to Mrs. H. Tilley of Alberni, first place, with second and third prizes again going to Gordon Redlack. Fourth went to Jack Lee of Saanich. Prizes for medium shades: W. E. Johnson, Port Alberni; second, Mr.

Redlack; and third, Jack Lee of Saanich.

No first place award was made for medium dark shades, but second and third again went to Norman Mount and Neil Courts, both of Salt Spring Island. Awards for dark shades went to Redlack, Courts and Lee in that order.

All three awards for mutations went to the beautiful white and silver animals, progeny of Prince, California-born chinichilla, belonging to Gordon and Ann Redlack.

Phoney Bills Flow

DUNCAN — The public should be especially aware of counterfeit money during the busy Christmas season said William Ogg manager of the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce here.

He made the comment after a counterfeit $20 note was found in a deposit.

Mr. Ogg believes the note worked its way here from Vancouver.

He said the counterfeit bill does not feel like a real note, its quality of paper and the sharpness of detail are inferior.

PORT ALBERNI

"Rain, rain go away... we're sick and tired of an inch a day." That's a little song most Alberni Valley residents are ready to sing, after a soggy November.

During the last seven days of the month 7.73 inches of rain fell, according to the McCoy Lake weatherman. 15.58 inches fell during the month, compared to an average of 12.94 over the past five years. But for the first 11 months of 1963, rainfall is still only 63.24 inches compared to an average of 65.06 inches.

NANAIMO

A winner of a Rotary scholarship from Taipei, on the island of Formosa, was guest speaker at the club's weekly dinner meeting Friday afternoon.

Kenneth Kuo, 27, now studying at the Pacific Lutheran University at Tacoma, Washington, outlined the activities of his club in Taipei.

He said the club is in district 345 which includes the whole of Formosa, Hong Kong and Macao.

His club in northwest Taipei has 53 members and among its projects are a beautification program, three scholarships, a committee for improving the relationship between employer and employee, a golf contest and student exchange programs.

Prior to his remarks on club work he sketched the history and achievements of his homeland.

He said there were three kinds of people, and of these 218,000 were of aboriginal origin who lived mainly on mountain reserves. 3,000,000 came from the mainland in 1949 with Chiang Kai-Shek, and 8,000,000 were original pioneers who came to the country 300 years ago.

The Dutch colonizers were driven out in 1661 but the island was lost to the Japanese in 1895 and not regained until after the end of the Second World War.

Primary occupation of the country is agriculture, and the main crops are rice, sweet potatoes and sugar cane.

Boat Basin

Access Purchase Cheers Crofton

CROFTON — Residents here expect they soon will have access to build a boat basin.

Ed Alexander, president of Crofton Ratepayers, told the group North Cowichan municipality is considering the purchase of land to provide access for the proposed boat basin.

The only provision the municipality has tagged on its promise is that the foreshore lease must be obtained first from the government.

The ratepayers also:

● Heard the complaint of Fred Crockett about radar late at night during the week which is a "dirty trick" in his opinion.

● Agreed with Cmdr. G. B. Barnes who said the use of salt on roads is very damaging to cars.

● Decided to advise the Highways Department that B.C. Telephone is willing to move poles further back from the roadway between Pinson's Corner and Crofton pulp mill.

Astronauts Lovell and Borman

Even Chances for Gemini Rendezvous

HISTORIC LIFT-OFF TODAY

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP)—Gemini 7 astronauts Frank Borman and James A. Lovell Jr. relaxed Friday on the eve of one of man's greatest space adventures—a two-week endurance flight during which two manned vehicles may fly within inches while orbiting at 17,500 miles an hour.

Success of the marathon mission and the planned rendezvous with Gemini 6, which will be launched later, would topple all man-in-space records and considerably enhance U.S. confidence that it can land astronauts on the moon in this decade.

Most space agency officials feel there is slightly better than a 50-50 chance that the Gemini 7 and 6 rendezvous can be accomplished in mid-December.

The smoothest pre-launch preparations in the history of the U.S. man-in-space program, roared without a hitch toward today's scheduled 11:30 a.m. PST launching of Gemini 7.

The forecast was for cloudy but satisfactory launching conditions at Cape Kennedy this afternoon.

All systems in the four-ton spacecraft and the Titan II rocket received thorough checks Friday and were pronounced in excellent shape. Fuel was loaded in the power-producing fuel cells.

If Britain Fails to Fill Gap

Zambia's Chief Sees Red-Led Race War

LUSAKA (AP)—Zambia's President Kenneth Kaunda suggested Friday that he might call for Soviet troops if Britain refuses to invade neighboring white-ruled Rhodesia. The British flew war planes into Zambia during the day for defence but Kaunda said that is not enough.

"If the United Kingdom refused to send ground troops," he said, "we could ask the United States."

He contended, however, that the U.S. is likely to follow Britain's lead, and added: "What is there left for us to do but to go to the Soviet government?" He said this is "just a line of thought."

If the Soviet Union is drawn into the campaign, he added, "this would not only be a racial war, but an ideological one."

The president talked at a press conference as RAF fighters and transport planes swarmed into the country to defend the Kariba Dam, on the Zambezi River border between Zambia and Rhodesia, which supplies power to the Zambian copper complex.

In Addis Ababa, Ethiopia, delegates from 35 African states voted to break diplomatic relations with Britain Dec. 15 unless Prime Minister Wilson's government crushes the Rhodesian white-supremacy rebellion by that date.

The delegates to the Organization of African Unity also voted to bar planes to Rhodesia from flying over their territory, cut off all communications with the breakaway British colony and to block all Rhodesian bank accounts. It declared all Rhodesian travel documents void.

The British have offered to send troops to protect the installation, but negotiations are bogged down over Zambia and possibly other countries.

This issue is considered especially vital since there is the possibility that troops from African countries might take part in any future operations here.

U.K. Seizes Reserve Bank

LONDON (UPI)—Britain, Friday, took over the Reserve Bank of Rhodesia and with it control of an estimated $56,000,000 in a dramatic new bid to crush the Rhodesian rebellion.

The action was regarded in financial quarters here as the toughest move yet made in the plan to bring the rebel government of Prime Minister Ian Smith to its knees.

It gives Britain immediate access to about $28,000,000 of Rhodesia's money and eventual control—when the bank's newly-appointed directors find out where it is—of the remaining amount.

Thompson Fortifies Liberals

OTTAWA (UPI)—Social Credit leader Robert Thompson Friday virtually guaranteed the minority Liberal government the votes it will need to weather any non-confidence motions in the new parliamentary session beginning Jan. 18.

"We won't allow the government to be blackmailed, and we won't allow Conservative leader John Diefenbaker to throw the country into another election," Thompson said in an interview.

The Social Credit leader said his party's five votes "can be a stabilizing force" in parliament. The Liberals are only two seats short of a majority.

In a free-wheeling interview, the MP from Red Deer, Alta., blasted Prime Minister Lester Pearson for not reorganizing his cabinet immediately after the election.

Russia Tries Again

New Shot at Moon

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet Union launched Friday its full multistage rocket. The final stage is put in a parking orbit around the earth before the capsule is fired toward the moon.

If all goes well, the first soft lunar landing in history should take place around midnight Moscow time (1 p.m. PST) Monday night, when American astronauts are scheduled to be orbiting the earth in the Gemini 7 capsule.

HEAVIER The unmanned Soviet space station Luna VIII, loaded with scientific equipment, weighed slightly more than earlier Soviet moon shots this year, 3,421.5 pounds.

The difference in weight could be due to refinements in the soft-landing system following three unsuccessful tests earlier this year. Luna V and Luna VI crashed on the moon by 100,000 miles.

An official announcement said the main purposes of Luna VIII is "further refinement of the elements of a soft lunar landing and scientific studies."

ALL NORMAL The announcement said all systems were functioning normally when the Lunik was last reported 28,378 miles from earth over Sinkiang province in western China.

Blast Shakes Saigon Billet

SAIGON (AP)—Viet Cong terrorists, breaking a pre-Christmas lull, attacked and blew up a U.S. enlisted men's billet with machine guns, grenades and an explosive-laden market truck before dawn today in downtown Saigon.

Estimates of Vietnamese casualties ranged up to 100, including eight dead.

A U.S. military spokesman said two Americans were killed and 67 wounded. A New Zealand artilleryman was killed and four of his mates wounded.

A series of bomb scares swept over the city after the big blast at the Metropole Hotel billet.

A Claymore mine was planted in the street with a time-fuse set to go off when a crowd gathered. It failed to go off.

A bomb believed to have been a hand grenade exploded near the top floor of a three-story officers' dormitory about two blocks from the Metropole. No one was injured there.

The attack's first met U.S. military policeman stationed at the Metropole billet.

The MP was wounded as he emptied his revolver and shotgun at the attackers.

Windows in the navy hospital were broken by the explosion and five patients were slightly injured by flying glass. The navy hospital adjoins the billet.

Also damaged was the navy dispensary in the billet building, and one source said it might be five or six weeks before it and its delicate X-ray and other equipment would be fully operating again.

Nearly all windows in the billet and vicinity were shattered.

Most of the U.S. and New Zealand casualties were hit by flying glass.

MINIMUM HIT A spokesman said, "fortunately, all of the boys were in their beds at the time, and not moving around. That meant they got a minimum of hits."

Touring U.S. Senate Majority Leader, Mike Mansfield, Democrat of Montana, and U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge visited the scene soon after dawn.

Lodge said later: "The bombing of the dispensary building and enlisted men's quarters was a diabolic act. It was also murder. In addition, it was sheer wanton terrorism, as was the killing and wounding of Vietnamese men, women and children who lived and worked nearby."

MAIN ATTACK Navy Captain Archie Kuntze, commander of the headquarters support command in Saigon, gave this account:

Shortly after 5 a.m. a hand grenade was thrown at the International billet possibly as a diversion from the main attack. About 10 minutes later, a produce truck with possibly 250 pounds of plastic explosive pulled up in front of the Metropole. Five or six men leaped

'Dangerous Momentum' In Viet War

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—Secretary-General U Thant warned the United Nations Friday the war in Viet Nam appeared to be gathering "dangerous momentum."

Thant told the 117-nation General Assembly after it had approved overwhelmingly a couple of resolutions on disarmament nothing would improve the prospects for disarmament more than an end to the Vietnamese war.

Russians Pay China In U.S. Coin

UNITED NATIONS (UPI)—China is forcing the Soviet Union to pay in American dollars and gold for transit duties and customs on Russian supplies sent to North Viet Nam, according to diplomatic sources.

The non-western diplomats said the Soviet Union has submitted to the charges even on medical supplies sent across China to Ho Chi Minh's regime in Hanoi.

With little demurring, the diplomats said, the Soviet Union has paid up.

Colonist 500 Fund

Brownie Pack Strives For Needy Families

Children are learning their community is not a homogeneous blend of easy living by helping with The Colonist 500 Fund.

Every year, groups of youngsters find out about the fund, ask questions and do something about it.

The fund sends a Christmas gift of money to the 500 neediest families in Greater Victoria. This is the ninth year of its operation. Last year the 500 received cheques for $25 each.

The latest groups of children to help this year were the 11th Victoria Brownie Pack of Gordon Head and the Grade

5, division 8, class of Richmond Elementary School. The Brownies held a sale of candy they made themselves, toys and comics they donated. They raised $15.75 for the fund.

The Grade 5ers gathered more than 1,000 bottles and sold them for a substantial $30.07.

Their reward, and that of hundreds of other generous Victorians, will be letters like these:

A pensioner: "I know that no one will go hungry at Christmas when there are so many wonderful and thoughtful people in this fair city."

Patient's Death: Murder

Coroner's Jury Rules in Arsenic Case

VANCOUVER (CP)—A coroner's jury Friday said the July 11 death of Mrs. Esther Castellani was due to arsenic poisoning and classified it as homicide by person or persons unknown.

Mrs. Castellani died after being ill for seven weeks in hospital and the jury said:

"We think the numerous doctors would have benefitted

by group consultation in order to arrive at a more definite diagnosis at an earlier date."

The jury recommended that pesticides and herbicides containing poisons such as arsenic be sold only on the signature of the buyer in a register kept by the vendor.

Coroner Glen McDonald, at the close of a 2½-day inquest which heard evidence given and denied that Mrs. Castellani's husband was planning to marry another woman, told the jury of three men and three women that they had to decide whether it was a case of suicide, accidental death or homicide. But if they found the latter he suggested that they could not find any particular person responsible.

The coroner repeated previous warnings to the jury that hearsay evidence from various witnesses must be considered as such and not necessarily as the truth.
